Payments at the speed of thought

Metaverse and payments

We are closer to a fully digital payment landscape than we've ever been before, online payments have been scaling steadily over the past 5 - 10 years and the natural evolution of online payments to augmented payments is already happening before our very eyes. Everyday things such as in-game or in-app purchases from places like Fortnite's V-Buck System, the NFT market in places like Opensea, communities, and tokens are replacing traditional systems we all relied upon where the direct consumer can pay the producer of the digital asset directly with no financial intermediary in their decentralised way. The instant element of blockchain and crypto payments means instant processing and settlement of digital assets like NFTs, cryptocurrency and other future discovered digital assets. These assets could be traded, sold, and marketed through the metaverse marketplace tied to an individual's blockchain based payment wallet or equivalent, meaning a secure, instant, scalable way of accepting a payment for commerce.

Furthermore, it's ironic how during this shift we're seeing an increase in CBDC's (Centralised Bank Digital Currency) confrontations between decentralised fully digital tokens, governments, banks, and the private financial sector. Will these centralised digital currencies battle for acceptance in the metaverse? Or will regulation beat them to it?

What history tells us is that technology always wins. Whether we will all be in a virtual party together, buying digital properties, goods, and services what's likely is that the payments landscape will be a different place and defined more by the metaverse community than the traditional institutions, banks, and payment companies that want to be a part of it.

Towards the end of 2021 came a resurgence of interest in the metaverse, opening a door on the subject to many more people. First, Facebook rebranded to Meta, and shifted focus from social media to a new platform—the meta universe (or metaverse for short). Within a few weeks, both Microsoft and Nvidia updated analysts on their own metaverse ambitions. And, soon after, The Economist magazine announced to its global readership that "something metaverse-shaped lying in the relatively near future is an idea worth taking seriously." The metaverse represents a strategic inflection point for today's financial institutions. Its arrival accentuates and accelerates three big trends that were already in play. Financial institutions need to address these trends to enable future success – both within the metaverse itself and across the wider world of digital commerce.

According to Mckinsey the metaverse is still being defined, both literally and figuratively. Yet its potential to unleash the next wave of digital disruption seems increasingly clear, with real-life benefits already emerging for early adopting users and companies. It wasn't until the early '90s when Marc Andreessen developed NCSA Mosaic, the graphic web browser that opened the world's eyes to the potential of the internet. Almost 30 years later, we've arrived at the next platform on which we can work, live, connect, and collaborate: the metaverse.

As we saw in previous shifts in technology such as the emergence of the internet followed by social media, mobile, and cloud, novel strategies can quickly become table stakes. The metaverse has the potential to impact everything from employee engagement to the customer experience, omnichannel sales and marketing, product innovation, and community building. While estimates of the potential economic value of the metaverse vary widely, our bottom-up view of consumer and enterprise use cases suggests it may generate up to $5 trillion in impact by 2030— equivalent to the size of the world's third-largest economy today, Japan.

Payments in Metaverse ecosystem

Several companies are approaching the metaverse and thinking about how they can generate revenue from it. And, what is in the backbone of revenue generation? Payments of course! Payments are enablers for of monetization model and, in the metaverse, there are key challenges that need to be overcome. When we talk about the metaverse we are referring to a virtual world and, therefore, physical cash can't be applied. Living in this world requires a proper virtual system to ensure all transactions, and digital payments are the main ways to sustain it. According to Visa, the global leader in payments, the most interesting characteristic of metaverse is that it has its own virtual economic system – a creator economy, which enables and incentivizes users to easily create, trade, and monetize digital content, using the built-in tools of the metaverse platform, as well as its own currency – cryptocurrencies in some platforms – that act as their method of payment. For example, in Roblox, anyone can make real money by creating their own digital content. Using the Roblox Studio, users can create new games, game accessories, or characters, sell them in the Roblox marketplace, and receive payment in Robux, the platform's in-house currency, which can be converted into U.S. dollars at the exchange within Roblox. If the currency used in a metaverse is cryptocurrency, such as AXS of Axie Infinity, it can be freely traded in mainstream crypto exchanges, such as Binance and Upbit. Users can earn and spend money by producing, distributing, and consuming, just as they would in the real world.

The metaverse brings another way to facilitate the trading of digital assets such as NFTs and cryptocurrencies, the total market value of which already is more than $2 trillion dollars. PayPal recently launched a new 'super app' and outlined its vision to become a digital wallet platform, not just a payment app. And, outside of the traditional payments sector, many other organizations, including big techs and platform players like Samsung, Facebook/Meta, and Rakuten, have developed their own propositions. For example, Facebook rolled-out a pilot for its own digital wallet, 'Novi'. Meanwhile, Rakuten, which launched its digital wallet back in 2017, recently announced a new service to top up Rakuten Cash (online e-money issued by the Rakuten group) via cryptocurrency and make payments at on/offline merchants such as 7-Eleven. With digital wallets becoming a focal point of digital asset trading and having the potential to become a form of digital identity, financial institutions should consider building a strong position in digital wallets and pursuing the associated opportunities. The popularization of non-fungible tokens (NFTs), or certificates to say that you own something that has been digitally recorded on a blockchain, began with Cryptokitties, a blockchain-based game in which users can create unique game characters and sell them at a high price. The NFT phenomenon has been extending its reach ever since, notably in areas such as art and collectables, encouraging more people and companies to regard them as digital assets or alternative investments. For example, in August 2021, Visa purchased a CryptoPunk – one of 10,000 highly sought-after digital characters on the Ethereum blockchain – for 49.5 ETH, or roughly US$150,000¹¹. At the close of the year, the global market for NFTs was valued at US$7 billion.

NFTs are just one example of digital assets in the metaverse. Another important example of digital assets in the metaverse is its cryptocurrencies. SAND in Sandbox, MANA in Decentraland, and AXS in Axie Infinity are well known cryptocurrencies, each of which is used and traded in its own metaverse. Ultimately, we believe the metaverse will likely draw many more people to digital assets, including NFTs and cryptocurrencies, and the market size will grow accordingly.

How money moves – ready for the next move?

How money moves have undergone and is undergoing huge, unprecedented change – increasingly, cards, digital and mobile payments dominate, and cash is fast on the way out. Advances in technology, the COVID-19 pandemic, cryptocurrency, and more have shaped the movement of money and have redefined roles for banks and cash systems. The COVID-19 pandemic has accelerated the move away from cash. Lots of youngsters don't carry cash anymore. There will come a moment, and it's approaching fast, when merchants and shopkeepers will say, "Why keep accepting cash, with the cost of dropping it off at the end of the day and keeping change, for those few people who still need it? We're going to stop accepting cash."

Imagine setting out to create an Uber, Amazon or Netflix without some form of embedded payment and remember how eBay struggled before PayPal. Think about how notes and coins make tipping so easy and intuitive and cards make tipping that little bit less so; consider how our inertia drives direct debit-powered subscription-based business and how blocking payments can drive people, businesses and even countries to the brink. Consider how rich our payment data is, and whether you want to share yours – and with whom. Who owns and controls what in our payments, and what does it mean for us and our futures?

SWIFT CEO Gottfried Leibbrandt says "And the other country that I found fascinating was India. It's another giant country, 1.5 billion inhabitants. That's also interesting. In China, the new players are sort of displacing the bank system. In India, they launched the Unified Payments Interface [UPI], which allows any app to plug into the banking system and launch a payment or consult a balance, which is a little bit comparable to what we have in Europe with PSD2. It's a completely different road, but it's growing even faster than in China. UPI is growing at over 100 percent a year. It's more than doubling every year. I think there was a period when it doubled every month—from a lower base than in China, but it's growing very fast."

The economist research team propounds that this digital revolution encompasses three broad trends. One is the effort to offer an ever-widening range of financial products on a single platform. Facebook's new digital wallet could make inroads. Banks, payment providers and bigger fintechs will continue to gobble up startups, with the aim of offering customers such a breadth of services that they will use a single platform for everything.

The second trend is the nascent attempt to decentralise finance. Developers are building all sorts of financial applications on blockchains, which ensure security and trust without the need for any intermediaries. Novel assets of all kinds associated with the DeFi world, such as non-fungible tokens (NFTs) and other crypto-tokens, will continue to proliferate.

Third, central banks, usually bastions of conservatism, are also breaking new ground. As more economic activity moves online and physical cash falls out of favour, many are on the path to introducing digital currencies of their own. Venture capitalists poured nearly $60bn into financial-technology startups in the first half of 2021. More than a hundred DeFi applications are in the works. Such fast-paced, exhilarating changes provide a stark contrast with retail finance of old, with its sleepy way of doing business, exorbitant fees and dire customer service. There is much to like about the new finance. For customers it should mean a system that uses technology to serve their needs better and at lower cost. Financial inclusion is a problem even in the rich world: one in five Americans were either unbanked or underbanked in 2018. Small firms regularly struggle to access finance.

Competition should also erode the fat margins of the incumbents (Visa and Mastercard make gross margins of 65-80%). Transferring money across borders, such as through remittances from rich countries to poor ones, is still too expensive. And as people conduct more of their lives online, and start to be a part of the emerging metaverse eco-system, it makes sense for finance to become not just more digital, but also better embedded within other digital activities, such as entertainment and shopping.

At present, the only money issued by a central bank and used by ordinary people is physical cash. Digital payments systems, which are flourishing, rely on private firms, such as banks, credit-card companies and tech firms. As cash falls out of use, central bankers worldwide have begun to ponder whether to replace it with a digital alternative.

system and used dedicated telegraph wires to transfer funds between banks. In the 1970s, the Federal Reserve developed an automated clearinghouse (ACH) system that offered an electronic alternative to paper checks. And in 2019, the Federal Reserve committed to building the FedNow SM Service, which will provide real-time, around-the-clock interbank payments, every day of the year.

Recent technological advances have ushered in a wave of new private-sector financial products and services, including digital wallets, mobile payment apps, and new digital assets such as crypto currencies and stablecoins. These technological advances have also

Payment technologies offered by the Federal Reserve, USA, have evolved over time. In the Federal Reserve's early years, it established a national check-clearing led central banks around the globe to explore the potential benefits and risks of issuing a CBDC.

Central bank digital currencies (CBDC)

Central bank digital currencies (CBDCs) have been making news headlines lately. With PayPal's big news that it will start supporting cryptocurrencies, now the payments giant confirmed during its recent Q3 earnings call that CBDCs are also on its radar. Mastercard, in its own Q3 earnings call, also stated it was readying for a future in which CBDCs played a prominent role, telling investors that its existing patents would ensure it can accommodate any developments.

But is all this mere speculation on the part of payment giants? Far from it. Speaking to the International Monetary Fund in mid-October, Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell acknowledged the potential of CBDCs to improve the existing payment system. The crypto markets responded enthusiastically, with Bitcoin quickly climbing over 2.5% on hearing Powell's assessment. Industry SMEs report that with all that's going on with CBDC, nothing is seen as yet. This is because CBDCs require us to ask all those interesting questions about payments that have yet to be raised.

According to the authors of the book, The Pay Off :

- If the payments system is a public good, should payment systems be operated as public utilities?
- What is more important, our privacy or our security? Speed or certainty? Ubiquity or choice? Are all these irreconcilable?
- What informs our payments preferences – history, geography, technology, or a bit of all three?
- What's a digital identity, who's in charge of it and why don't (some of us) have one?
- What level of surveillance are we happy with – and whose? If we're happy for Amazon or Apple, Visa or PayPal to see everything we buy online, why not our central banks? Do we need banks? Do we need branches and if so, who should pay for them?
- Is the world's US dollar dependency desirable, affordable or even acceptable? Could a digital alternative from the other side of the world challenge it? Whose sovereignty do we want – and how much backing do we want our sovereigns to give (and to whom)?
- If banks can't give us a seamless, frictionless, borderless payments experience, why shouldn't we throw in our lots with Alipay, Tencent or Libra (now Diem)? Or, for that matter, why shouldn't central banks put their convening power to play and put all their backs to the wall with CBDCs?
- Can the digital dream break down currency borders, or will it just result in new, digitised dams? Should credit subsidise payments, and if not who or what should – the taxpayer with their money, or the user with his/her privacy?
- How many payment choices do we need? And do choices really mean redundancy – can you really spread payment risk around? Shouldn't we instead put all our eggs in one basket and get someone to sit on it – and if so, who?
- If cash goes, what money can we trust? Are cryptocurrencies and or stablecoins really serious contenders in payments, and while we're at it, do we actually need money at all?

With the sand dollar already busy on Bahamian beaches and the e-CNY chugging along in Shenzhen, Suzhou and Chengdu, all these questions are ripe for asking – which is why answers you are starting to find a plenty. While in The Economist's view "the new yuan will be a lot like the old yuan", Niall Ferguson warns on Bloomberg that China's e-CNY will challenge US (currency) supremacy if the dollar isn't digitised.

What about the banks? Rarely backward when it comes to coming forward, the US banks aren't taking chances on a new digital US dollar surprising them. Instead, they are already lined up and warning about CBDC through their advocacy body, the Bank Policy Institute. A CBDC publication from the BPI duly notes that "issuance of a CBDC would be a larger policy change for our society than practically any legislation in living memory". If that weren't enough to send tremors through US Congress, the BPI went on to critique a BIS publication which had carefully set out the tensions between different CBDC design choices and their relative benefits. Lashing out at this considered summary, the BPI snarled: "to those who have ever worked in business, where rising enthusiasm is not considered proof of concept, this discussion reads like a post mortem explanation for why a project was abandoned due to undue complexity and cost".

Anyone that has ever got involved in payment systems knows there are (undue) complexities, costs and trade-offs – central bankers as much as anybody. So don't expect that enthusiasm to stop rising and, again, don't expect to stop hearing about CBDC any time soon. If nothing else, the questions that CBDC raise are well worth asking.

What is a CBDC and How Are They Different from Cryptocurrencies?

Despite a long-standing association with cryptocurrencies, CBDCs don't share many characteristics with Bitcoin. Bitcoin is based on blockchain technology. New bitcoins are created as a reward for miners, to incentivize them to continue confirming blocks of transactions. The network of bitcoin miners is decentralized and public, so anyone can join and start mining bitcoins, providing they have the right equipment.

Bitcoin is also a deflationary currency. The issuance of new bitcoins is programmed to decrease over time, which helps to drive the value through scarcity.

In contrast, a CBDC simply refers to a digital currency issued by a central bank. It doesn't need to be based on a blockchain or any kind of distributed ledger, although it may be in some cases. For instance, China is blazing a trail with its digital yuan, which isn't thought to be based on a blockchain. Furthermore, although many CBDCs are still in the research stage, it's unlikely that they'll be based on public blockchains where anyone can join due to cybersecurity concerns.

CBDCs are foreseen to act as a complement to, and replace, physical cash with digital equivalents. Therefore, their issuance will be subject to the control of central banks in the same way as fiat currencies. It inevitably follows that their value will be determined by the value of the national currency. In October 2021, the Bank of International Settlements (BIS) published its latest report into CBDCs together with seven national banks with which it's collaborating. The report laid out three principles for a CBDC – that it should co-exist with cash rather than replace it, that it should support broader policy objectives without damaging the economy, and it should promote innovation and efficiency.

The proportion of central banks actively engaged in CBDC work is growing.

Various public statements indicate that central banks envision CBDCs as more than simply a digital-native version of traditional notes and coins. Beyond addressing the challenge of greater financial inclusion, some governments view CBDCs as programmable money—vehicles for monetary and social policy that could restrict their use to basic necessities, specific locations, or defined periods of time. Implementing such functionality will be a complex and multilayered undertaking. Meanwhile, central banks face the challenge of introducing a timely CBDC model at least on par with digital offerings of private-sector innovators in order to establish credibility with such efforts and achieve adoption. While existing electronic payment systems are considered by some to be expensive, inefficient, and at times difficult to access, emerging privately issued stablecoin alternatives could raise concerns over the potential for large private entities to aggregate and monetize large sets of behavioral data on private citizens. Although the market is far too nascent to confidently predict outcomes, constituents from all corners of the payments ecosystem can take valuable steps to position themselves for the inevitable changes on the horizon—regardless of the form such changes take. Many retail banks already face extensive payments modernization requirements in the coming years—tackling infrastructure for digital currencies represents an additional demand on limited development capacity. Incorporating all such efforts into an integrated road map, reflecting potential synergies and possible triage, should promote long-term efficiency and avoid duplication of effort. The impact of CBDCs on private-sector banks likely depends on the speed of their adoption. Specifically, if adoption of CBDCs were to happen relatively quickly, the flow of funds into bank deposits would be diverted, at least temporarily, into digital cash, thereby limiting the ability of banks to lend and generate fee income with such deposits. Accordingly, it would seem in the interest of private-sector banks for the introduction of CBDCs to be slower and more carefully orchestrated, potentially with initial transaction limits. The most advanced market application of CBDC to date has been the People's Bank of China's (PBoC) multicity pilot of its digital version of RMB, called eCNY.

Clearly these technological considerations, regulatory actions, and market dynamics carry major systemic implications for banking and the payments industry. Sheer regulation is highly unlikely to suppress the demand for digital currencies, and innovators will continue to push the envelope by developing new uses and distribution models satisfying both demand and legislative requirements. Similarly, the results of initial pilots and ongoing research of CBDCs will help shape their evolution and potential adoption.

Global payments 2022

In 2021, the offline and online worlds merged for good, solidifying the digital-first economy as the new normal for businesses and consumers. Even though in-person shopping has largely reopened, consumers have become accustomed to the simplicity and ease of ecommerce. And we have merchants, issuers, and fintechs to thank for creating and enabling frictionless digital experiences at scale.

The melding of online and offline means that omnichannel commerce has become a business requirement. While physical stores still have an essential role in a digital-first economy, that role may now include facilitating online shopping by acting as a showroom, a micro fulfillment center, a curbside pick-up location, and more.

2021 also witnessed notable labor and product shortages due to the 'Great Resignation,' continued impact from the COVID-19 pandemic, and constricted supply chains. While the causes for these shortages may be temporary, the actions businesses took to overcome them are not. By embracing automation, businesses now do more with less while serving customers more effectively. As workers return and supply chains start flowing again, these actions will leave businesses better prepared to serve customers in the digital-first economy.

Key trends have been identified as expected to shape or continue to shape commerce and payments over the next 12 months.

The trends include:

➤ Changing customer expectations

Businesses are expanding their payment options to meet customer preferences for digital payments, both contactless in-store and flexible choices online. In 2021, 38% of merchants reported expanding their digital payment options. This momentum is poised to grow at an accelerated rate in 2022 when 53% of merchants expect to accept more digital payment options over the year.

"People want to have a frictionless commerce experience at the point when they want to transact. And that's not just at the point of sale; it's across the entire experience," said Bob Cortopassi, president at Global Payments Integrated.

53% of merchants plan to expand payment methods in 2022.

An estimated 4.4 billion global consumers will shop with a digital wallet by 2023, accounting for 52% of ecommerce payments globally. 1.6 billion global consumers will pay by digital wallets at the point of sale (POS) in 2023, accounting for 30% of POS payments.

“With the increased acceptance of digital transactions, coupled with consumer preference, there’s going to be an acceleration in [digital wallet] usage, even more than there already has been,” said Dave Duncan, EVP, chief product officer at Global Payments.

QR codes continue to grow as a popular, safe, and easy payment method. While QR-code adoption rates vary by country—for example, 70% usage rate in China and only 8% usage rate next door in Japan—the market is projected to grow significantly across all countries over the next few years. By 2025, QR-code payment users are expected to exceed 2.2 billion, equating to 29% of all mobile phone users globally.

Pay by link allows businesses to create instant custom links to send to customers to initiate payments online. Customers can then pay using their preferred payment method. These links make it easy to use any channel, including text messaging, email, social media, and messaging platforms, to accept online payments.

While similar to pay by link, business-to-business (B2B) payments traditionally use digital invoicing, an invoice that can be viewed and paid digitally. Both options improve the speed and efficiency of payments as well as automate manual processes and help improve cash flow. Both forms of digital payments are on the rise; one pay by link provider reports seeing 6x growth in transactions from 2020 to 2021, while digital invoicing is projected to grow at a compound annual rate of 20.4% from 2019 to 2027.

Growth of buy now, pay later

Businesses like furniture and electronics retailers have long offered customers installment payment plans for major purchases. Today, paying for purchases with tailored, flexible buy now, pay later plans—for even small ticket items—is poised to become one of the fastest-growing payment trends in 2022.

65% of merchants plan to add buy now, pay later as a payment method in 2022.

BNPL is the payment method in the right place at the right time. “The recent surge in BNPL transactions can be attributed to several factors, including rising merchant adoption, its omnichannel application, flexibility, and loyal youth consumers,” said Gaylon Jowers, president at TSYS Issuer Solutions, SEVP at Global Payments.

BNPL payments online are on the rise, expected to account for roughly 24% of all global ecommerce transactions by 2026, up from just 9% in 2021. Younger shoppers appreciate the flexibility of BNPL, with 44% of Gen Z and 37% of millennials expected to make a BNPL payment in 2022, compared to 23% of Gen X and 9.4% of baby boomers.

In addition, many younger shoppers may not have the income or credit history required to leverage credit cards, as 30% of millennials say they live paycheck to paycheck, compared to 15% of older shoppers. These consumers appreciate the simplicity and predictability of BNPL. BNPL allows these shoppers to be more strategic about their spending to avoid debt.

Acceleration of connected commerce

While enterprises traditionally have the technology advantage, providers are integrating payments with solutions for small and medium businesses to benefit from, and deliver, the connected commerce experience. These solutions seamlessly integrate omnichannel payments, point-of-sale, rich data and analytics, email marketing, advertising, and more. In addition, there is often just one integration point, making it easier for small businesses to run and grow their businesses.

Idea is to work with a limited number of providers that allow you to choose the solutions you need for all of your commerce requirements. This allows you to quickly integrate data and gain greater control over your commerce technology while providing consumers with a seamless experience.

For issuers, these providers can help you more easily build, deploy, and support digital experiences through a range of unbundled API-enabled microservices. “It can be challenging to cobble together point solutions from several different providers. Identifying a single source provider who offers a variety of connected solutions from which you can pick and choose will help streamline and simplify your overall commerce tech stack”, said Cortopassi.

The digitization of B2B payments

While the use of paper checks continues to decrease by the year, it still accounts for more than 50% of the overall transaction value for B2B payments. When it comes to vendor relationships, businesses are still preparing and sending paper invoices, or emailed invoices that get printed out and annotated by someone in an office who inputs it into an ERP system. The payment experience is even more manual. For example, someone writes paper checks, puts them in envelopes, or inputs payments into a spreadsheet for uploading to the bank for ACH or EFT. Or it's someone with a corporate purchasing card calling the provider and giving the payment details over the phone.

With the recent move to a more remote workforce, businesses see that their employees need to manage their accounts receivable and payable functionality outside of a physical office. Digitizing B2B payments, including accounts payable, accounts receivable, expense reimbursement, and employee-initiated spending, is the solution with significant benefits.

With digital B2B payments, a business has more visibility into what funds are going where and why. In turn, they gain the transparency and control needed to optimize cash flow, reduce errors, and mitigate payment-related fraud. Another benefit in reducing your manual payment, processes gets down to the bottom line: saving money. Reducing checks by 10-50% equates to $1.3-$58.3 billion savings each year. The hard costs of B2B check payments disappear when migrating to digital processes including paper, postage, and the time it takes to stuff envelopes. For all of these reasons, global B2B non-cash transactions will increase to nearly 200 billion transactions by 2025, from 121.5 billion in 2020, according to Capgemini estimates.

Attention to data privacy, end to end

Data privacy is increasingly important on both the global and local levels as regulators seek to protect their constituents. GDPR, CCPA, and LGPD are just a few of the data privacy regulations passed in recent years that organizations need to comply with when doing business in a global market, significantly increasing the complexity of compliance.

"Data privacy is very difficult. We have stratification of regulation across every jurisdiction. We have a different rule in every state. We have different rules in cities, in some cases. We have different rules in most countries. Not only do we have different rules, we have constantly changing rules," said Dara Steele-Belkin, SVP, assistant general counsel, chief privacy officer at Global Payments.

Payment providers are leveraging technology to facilitate data privacy. For example, the payment industry has adopted tokenization to separate personally identifiable information (PII) from other customer data so businesses can maintain compliance, better protect customers, and leverage non-personal data for new insights.

"We spend a lot of time thinking about how we secure PII and devalue the data so that we can deliver the same seamless experience. That's why we've been hyperfocused on network tokens that can provide a secure credential that obscures the PIN and devalues the token," Cohen said.

The ability to maintain data privacy is only as strong as the ability to protect personal data, making cybersecurity a must. It's important to work with payment partners and leverage their solutions to the fullest. But while data privacy may not be an area of expertise, it may still be a responsibility.

"Businesses need to understand which obligations belong to them and which obligations belong to their technology provider. Sometimes they belong to the merchant under the law. So if you have obligations as the merchant, with regard to the cardholders, then you need to be really careful about who your technology provider is," Steele-Belkin said.

With the speed at which change occurs, digital-first commerce will soon be the new normal. The faster you can adapt, the more competitive you will be.

Cloud-based payment infrastructures

With the rise of cloud-based payment infrastructures, and particularly PaaS models, banks can now more easily work with partners to establish connections in new countries or keep up with the introduction of new high value and low value real-time payments networks in countries where they already operate. This is accelerating the integration with additional domestic real-time networks, with 73% of respondents claiming they will be increasing the number they connect to within the next 12 months. Cloud is the dominant deployment foundation for payment systems today with 69.5% saying it is where their payments systems are mostly deployed. PaaS providers are taking a growing slice of this, with 11.4% saying it accounts for most of their payment systems. The trend towards cloud is even more pronounced, with 89.2% of all new payments system implementations going on cloud or with a PaaS provider.

ISO 2022 messaging standard continues

The ISO 2022 messaging standard continues to gain momentum as more and more clearing and settlement mechanisms adopt the standard. At a national and cross-border infrastructure level, readiness for supporting ISO 2022 message types is driving a lot of change. But payment services providers themselves are also busy investing in the future of payments. Many domestic and cross-border payments networks are aligning in terms of message standards such as ISO 2022, and similar

API-based architectures. 54.9% of organisations expect to be supporting two or more new cross-border payment networks in the next 12 months, and they are spoiled for choice with SWIFT's new services gaining traction, card schemes moving into corporate cross-border payments, blockchain and DLT-based solutions maturing, and possibilities emerging around Central Bank Digital Currencies (CBDC).

Without interoperability, real-time payments have little viability

Real-time payments are growing fast. They are a network or platform solution that consumers use to transact in seconds. Ideally, these platforms or networks should operate 24x7x365. Banks looking to leverage RTP technology require 24x7 backend systems. In 2020, Real-time transactions numbered 70.3 billion, a 41 percent increase from 2019. RTPs real-time share of global electronic transactions in 2020 was 9.8 percent and is expected to hit 17.4 percent by 2025.

Without interoperability, real-time payments have little viability when it comes to cross-border transactions. Achieving true interoperability involves establishing universal connectivity between international payment hubs, a problem which has proved uniquely challenging to solve, but that initiatives such as P27 in Scandinavia and the IXB collaboration between EBA Clearing, SWIFT and The Clearing House seem poised to overcome in the near future. A survey carried out by Volante says 92.7% of respondents were now connected to at least one domestic real-time payment network, with 46% connected to multiple.

92.7% of respondents connected to at least one domestic real-time payment network, with 46% connected to multiple

Looking forward, we see a handful of primary drivers influencing the payments revenue trajectory. On the one hand, continued cash displacement and a return to global economic growth will accelerate existing upward trends in the share and number of electronic transactions. On the other, interest margins will likely remain muted. Sustained softness in this key topline contributor will create greater incentive for payments players to pursue new fee-driven revenue sources and to expand beyond their traditional focus to adjacent areas such as commerce facilitation and identity services.

Given the above assumptions global payments revenues is expected to quickly return to their long-term 6 to 7 percent growth trajectory, recouping 2020's declines in 2021 and reaching roughly $2.5 trillion by 2025. More importantly, however, as "payments" become further absorbed into commercial and consumer commerce journeys, established payments providers will gain access to adjacent opportunities as large as the core payments revenue pool. Of course, an opportunity of this magnitude draws attention—tech firms and ecosystem competitors are already focusing on these attractive (and often less regulated) elements of the payments value chain, rather than traditional interchange, acquiring, and transaction fees linked to payment flows.

New opportunities in payments

The push for digital identity verification systems gained momentum during the pandemic, both as a facilitator for expanding e-commerce volumes and as a means for governments to rapidly disburse welfare and other social payments. Examples proliferated across the globe: a digital ID system enabled Chilean authorities to swiftly pre-enroll millions of beneficiaries in social programs and allowed potential recipients to confirm eligibility and, where necessary, appeal their support status online. In Thailand, more than 28 million people applied for a new benefit for informal workers affected by the pandemic: a digital ID system enabled the government to efficiently filter out those eligible for assistance through other programs.

Digital ID-enabled payment solutions achieved broader usage as well. Transactions through India's bank-led and real-time Aadhaar Enabled Payments System (AEPS) more than doubled over the two years ending in March 2021, while the value conveyed more than tripled over the same period.

Cross-border payments remain a significant growth area. In 2020, even with travel and trade volumes in decline, cross-border e-commerce transactions grew 17 percent. Volumes for cross-border network provider SWIFT were 10 percent higher in December 2020 compared to the prior year: not only has the "re-shoring" of production chains and related shift in trade flows we expected last year so far failed to materialize, but increases in non-trade payment flows have more than offset lower transaction volumes in trade, driven by increased volatility in treasury, FX, and securities. These dynamics are leading to growth in volumes as well as record market valuations for a growing list of payments specialists such as Currencycloud (recently acquired by Visa), Banking Circle, and Wise.

The B2B payment arena is also showing strong growth internationally, especially when viewed in conjunction with invoicing and accounts receivable/accounts payable (AR/AP) management solutions. The largest transaction banks continue to invest in innovative solutions; and Goldman Sachs, a more recent entrant into the space, is developing a platform including integration with SAP Ariba.

Fraud moving to digital channels – Learning from India

Employing Data Analytics for Fraud Detection and Prevention

February 2018 started with a shock when India was rocked by the news of fraud worth billions of dollars. This was followed by media frenzy trying to identify the source of the problem. Some blamed the banking system, some blamed auditors, and others held the politicians responsible. Every taxpayer rued the misuse of taxes paid from their hard earned money. Smartphones were flooded with WhatsApp jokes, cartoons, opinions, and views. The sentiment was more of fault-finding than of tightening our belts to prevent a repetition of such a fiasco. Haven't we Indians had enough of that already?

There is a data analytic solution approach for fraud detection and prevention.

“ CIBIL data shows the total amount outstanding with wilful defaulters has gone up from Rs. 28,416.93 crore as of 30 September 2013 to Rs 1.11 trillion on 30 September, 2017 a CAGR of 40.82% ”
- Livemint report, Feb 21, 2018

So how could a data analytics solution help detect or prevent a fraud? Before we attempt to answer this question, let us look at some of the causes of financial fraud.

- Ignorance: At times bankers lack awareness about the fraud potential of the job they are responsible for. These bankers become an easy target for perpetrators of fraud. Either the bank lacks a well-defined fraud awareness training program or the employees are not subjected to this training process. This happens due to lack of knowledge.
- Negligence: At times the employees responsible for a job are aware of potential frauds imminent on the job as well as the control mechanisms built into the process to prevent them. But they fail to abide by the set rules or fail to notice and report irregularities out of sheer negligence. Such bankers can become passive perpetrators of fraud. Some bankers view compliance with fraud regulations to be burdensome. In such cases, there is no lack of knowledge. The root cause could be general laxity of attitude, apathy or even an overzealousness to meet financial goals.
- Connivance: This happens in spite of adequate knowledge and no laxity of attitude. Rather, the problem lies in wilful damaging. These are the real perpetrators of fraud. More often than not, this involves multiple parties across business functions and organization hierarchy.

Employing data analytics could help better business visibility and effective identification of incidents for better governance. For example, if there is a case of absence of collaterals in loan processing, this would be flagged as an outlier. The basic assumption here is that the bank, by and large, follows processes and absence of collaterals is a stray case.

Let us ponder case by case.

Ignorance: Data analytics solutions can help improve governance of employee learning and skill development process. Bank management will be able to identify lapses in employee learning and development and fix them. The central regulator will be able to track and monitor the breadth and depth of the banks' learning and development process and its implementation.

Negligence: Here again data analytics solutions can help improve governance of process compliance by employees. Better governance will help reduce process violations and effective identification of risky transactions.

Connivance: This is where data analytics solutions can make a substantial difference. Some use cases are cited below.

Case 1. One of the causes of fraud plaguing the banking system is a diversion of funds. Often fraudsters siphon money using transactions which appear innocent when viewed in isolation, but a pattern emerges on a closer look. Link analysis will help identify fund movement in and out of accounts. It will ease the identification of dubious accounts that fraudsters may use to camouflage fraudulent transactions.

Let us dig a little deeper. Link analysis is an analytical technique where relationships are depicted as a connection between nodes. In the given context, bank accounts will represent nodes and account transfers will represent connections between the nodes. The connections will be directed from payee account to payer account. A dubious account is likely to show intense payer relationship with some accounts and payee relationship with some other accounts. See graphical representation :-

From To	Account 1	Account 2	Account 3	Account 4	Account 5

In this case, account 1 has made one payment to account 2 and received two payments from account 2. Account 1 and account 2 do not show any relationship with the other three accounts. Account 3 has made one hundred payments to account 4. Account 4 has made ninety-five payments to account 5. This indicates that account 4 is possibly acting as a conduit to transfer money between account 3 and 5. Instead of transferring the money directly from account 3 to account 5, account 4 is being used to camouflage money transfers.

Case 2. Loan fraud is likely to happen when collaterals required to cover a loan are either absent or get overvalued or are used to cover multiple loans. A single entity getting multiple loans with subsequent non-payment and accumulation of dues carries potential fraud risks. Data analytics can help classify and profile loan accounts and loan receivers to identify outliers. Data visualization techniques will ease the governance process.

Case 3. Insider fraud happens when an employee or multiple employees collude with or without external parties to dupe the system. Network analysis techniques can be employed to identify the recurring nexus between parties carrying potential fraud risks.

A survey conducted by Deloitte in 2016 predicted an increase in financial fraud in India in the near future. This malady needs a cure. While fraudsters employ ingenious methods to dupe the banking system, data analytics can be gainfully employed to improve governance and easily identify potential fraud scenarios. Bank management, auditors and regulators will have better insights into the identification of risky transaction patterns through analytical methods followed by a visual depiction of data. Today, this technology can be effectively utilized to address the maladies plaguing the banking system and to prevent such catastrophic consequences while ensuring social and economic good for humankind.

RS Case Study

Enterprise Fraud and Risk Platform

Client: National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI)

Business Challenge

The outstanding success of the UPI real-time payments platform in India launched in April 2016, followed by the most notable achievement in the world of a Bill payment platform BBPS in India (both the platforms built exclusively by RS Software India Limited), resulted in exceptional levels of adoption of digital payments, transforming the lives of a billion+ Indian residents. History tells us that high and that too quick adoption brings with it rapid increase in fraud levels, creating risks for individuals, businesses and the nation at large. The foremost challenge was that huge increase in account based real-time payments was new to the world, and there was no system available globally that could provide adequate risk management. The second important challenge was that India has as many as 18 different payment channels. The existing Fraud and Risk Management (FRM) system at national level operated in silos, catered to a limited number of digital channels, and was incompatible with the new digital API first, and Mobile First platforms launched in the country. The legacy technology of the existing platform failed to match the YoY growth of digital transactions in the country. The result was heavy timeouts and latency, with inevitable undesirable consequences. In fact India's Minister of State for Finance at that time, Mr Anurag Thakur said in a written reply in the parliament that "Digital payments frauds make up for a significant portion – up to half – of all bank fraud cases".

Fraud risk management solutions must be customized to address the specific vulnerabilities of these payment providers while adhering to regulatory standards, best practices, customer data privacy and data localization laws. Unfortunately, even the most respected global companies have little or no flexibility to tailor their products to meet stakeholder needs. Many find it challenging to apply artificial intelligence and machine learning (AI/ML) techniques to the unstructured and often unlabeled data that organizations generate. Nor can they recommend technology stacks that work with both online and offline components, guaranteeing data security and PCI compliance. Building a cost-optimized distributed processing architecture that works under these constraints is a formidable task even for the best-of-breed suppliers of fraud management solutions.

The Indian government decided to float a global RFP to build a new Enterprise Fraud and Risk Management (EFRM) system for all its digital channels, leveraging business rules and ML models to filter or alert on fraudulent transactions.

Solution

Utilizing its analytics platform, RS IntelliEdge™, RS proposed a platform with a unique Scoring Engine that filtered fraud based on risk scores computed using deterministic rules applied to payment context as well as used AI/ML models for probabilistic coverage.

It used Data Stream Analytics-based learning to continuously monitor, interpret, and update the behavior of payer/payee profiles in real-time. This led to a hyper-focused high fidelity fraud classification. To cover for new fraud patterns, it used self-learning AI techniques to detect anomalous payment behavior to filter fraud. Key performance metrics are:

- Response time of <200 milliseconds
- A payment-focused Rule Editor and Rule Simulator helped self-service for risk analysts to build rules; there are now 34,000 live rules
- Federated architecture helped banks to have their own rules overlayed on rules developed by the central hub; it also allowed the central hub to defer the alert categorization to the bank's risk teams.

Results

EFRM went live with POS and ECOM channels in May 2019 and was subsequently integrated with other digital channels.

A snapshot of current performance reveals:

The platform currently averages 2200 TPS and peaks at 4500 TPS

- Fraud Detection Rate (FDR) is >70% and False Positive Rate (FPR) is <25%. Reduction in False Positives protected customer brand value against denial of service for legitimate transactions. With little timeouts and response times less than the blink of an eye, the customer business grew by increasing TPS.
- 1200+ banks have been onboarded
- EFRM currently handles 150+ million transactions per day, where 60% are RTP (UPI) transactions
- There are more than 34,000 rules in production with a hot rollout of Rules and Model Refresh with zero downtime
- It provides Federated Case Management and Turbo Transaction Search
- The platform supports a wide range of message formats (ISO 8583, ISO 20022, XML, ISO X.509, JSON, fixed-width formats) and complies with regulatory Data Security Policies (PCI-DSS, PA-DSS)

Between October 2019, when all channels went live, and May 2022, the potential fraud savings enabled by EFRM was USD 243.32 billion.

The spectacular success of the platform has led to the customer re-engaging with RS Software to extend the EFRM load to 5,500 TPS, with plans to horizontally scale up the system to 10,000 TPS within a year of implementation.

RS Software builds 'giant leap' for India's digital payments

Between 2010 and 2015, digital payment transactions hovered around 10-20% of total transactions. It was only meant for the tech savvy and worked only where the internet was available.

Around this time, a group of people embarked on reimagining digital payments for India – an inclusive design that would run using an indigenous protocol, open technology, and commodity hardware, utilizing the existing banking infrastructure while supporting innovation and low total cost of ownership (TCO).

The outcome was Unified Payments Interface (UPI), which was envisioned as a unified access mechanism to all existing payment options in the country and built as the real-time payment rails for India. RS Software was privileged to have been chosen to build the state-of-the-art platform, ground-up.

On 11-April-2016, when real-time payment launched as the first channel with the UPI access layer, it was the inflection point that would go on to revolutionize the digital payments landscape in India. UPI became synonymous with real-time payments in India.

Echoing the sentiment of Neil Armstrong with respect to the Apollo 11 mission in April 1969, we can perhaps say for UPI that, "This small step towards enabling real-time payment for India became a giant leap for the nation's digital payments ecosystem". Today, UPI has reached more than a billion people in the country. A relentless focus on customer experience, design, accessibility, and convenience have been key to UPI's resounding success.

Since that day, the following developments have been reported:

- ▶▶ UPI scaled from ~0.09 billion since launch to a staggering 5862 billion transactions worth Rs 10 trillion in June 2022 - a period of just 6 years
- ▶▶ 330 banks are live on UPI
- ▶▶ Rural real-time payment transactions have moved to ~6% of total UPI transactions
- ▶▶ Digital penetration of UPI apps like PhonePe and Google Pay saw steep growth in rural India amid the pandemic
- ▶▶ Innovative usage has been launched by giant techs as well as local start-ups
- ▶▶ Channels like IMPS and AEPS has been made accessible through the UPI interface
- ▶▶ Use cases such as pre-approved payments and recurring payments have been supported
- ▶▶ Cost of payment acquisition (MDR) has dropped from 0.9%-3% (cards) to 0% (UPI)
- ▶▶ With the launch of UPI123Pay in March 2022, the RBI has permitted the payment mechanism for feature phone users and offline mode to spread UPI adoption further.

As adoption of the platform grew and UPI closed in on the rated throughput capacity. RS stepped-in with a new-age big-data based non-blocking solution that scaled the platform to a billion transactions a day. UPI transaction volume has grown 3 times since this new architecture has been deployed.

UPI is a truly federated and open design unlike the closed systems of some of its predecessors. These aspects of UPI are the largest set of business architectural shifts from earlier generations of faster payments and now Real-Time Payments. Major payment networks Visa and Mastercard are committed to the principle of payments anytime, anywhere, and recognize that UPI like systems will shape the digital financial services landscape globally.

Rapid adoption and the fact that UPI has exceeded the 20+ billion per year mark since launch bear testimony to the strengths of its architecture and design, and most importantly, demonstrate scale and innovation at a pace not achieved anywhere else in the world. Global acceptance of the superiority of the platform –“Most advanced, sophisticated public digital Payments infrastructure in the world”– the Immediate Payment System (IMPS) on which UPI was built was the only payment scheme to have received a 5 rating in the FIS Flavors of Fast Report in 2018.

Today UPI is crossing borders as RBI forges relationships for the expansion of UPI in other countries. Bhutan and Nepal are already accepting UPI, and it is likely to go live in Singapore later this year. Merchants in Singapore, Cambodia, Malaysia, Thailand, Philippines, Vietnam and Bhutan accept UPI payments through QR-codes. NIPL, the international arm of NPCI is in talks with Australia to integrate UPI with Australia's New Payments Platform, its faster payments rail. NIPL has signed a MOU with France-based payments solution provider Lyra Network to accept UPI and RuPay cards in the country,

[As per a PhonePe-Boston Consulting Group report ("Digital payments in India: A $10 trillion opportunity"), India's digital payments market is expected to increase more than threefold from the current $3 trillion to $10 trillion by 2026. This would translate to digital payments constituting 2 out of 3 payment transactions by 2026.]

Fiscal 2022 has set the foundation to win, and it feels almost like 'lull before the storm'. What is driving us is the patience and the commitment to do all we can for our stakeholders, the belief in ourselves that continues to be reinforced by our existing and potential customers, the validation of our strategy to focus on the payments modernization opportunity, and the conviction in what we are here for, which is to transform humanity with the power of payments. Our corporate journey for 30+ years is enriched, while working with global leaders and start-ups alike.

Keep going, the best is yet to come!

What keeps us going

At RS Software, innovation, creativity, and entrepreneurship come together in delivering payment systems that impact people, country, businesses and government, making it possible for us to address the demand for new type of financial infrastructure globally, which enables shared digital capabilities. The four major payment platforms that we have helped to build globally process 350+ billion transactions annually. India's success story with digital payments is unfolding every minute to achieve the next level of success, and what enables this unprecedented set of achievements are the three major payment platforms exclusively built by RS Software. The RS Payments Innovation Lab pursues with passion that 5G enabled connectivity, coupled with advances in AI algorithms, quantum computing, and blockchain will radically alter the payments, leading to continuous demand for payments modernization - a multi-decade opportunity. The company's leadership is committed to execute a fine balance that helps to achieve optimal cashflow based financial strategy, while reaching out in the market with its strategic partnering model to go after the continuing growth opportunities in payments modernization.

Transforming India - dream coming true

During the fiscal 22, transactions volume on the UPI platform scaled from ~0.09 billion since launch in 2016, to a staggering 5+ billion transactions, and most recently the month of June recorded 5.8 billion transactions, valued at Rs 10 trillion. There are today 330 banks live on the UPI platform. What started as a small step when RS Software exclusively built the UPI platform, has become a 'giant leap' for India. With the launch of UPI123Pay in March 2022, making UPI transactions possible for feature phone users and available in the offline mode as well, rural India particularly has got empowered, bringing with it true financial inclusion. This level of adoption bear testimony to UPI architecture and design strengths, executed by RS Software. Most importantly, it demonstrates scale and innovation at a pace not achieved anywhere else in the world.

Major payment networks Visa and Mastercard are committed to the principle of payments anytime, anywhere, and recognize that UPI like systems will shape the digital financial services landscape globally. UPI is the first faster payment system that truly has demonstrated the success of going international, UPI is on a roll to be accepted in many countries. The technology stack of UPI, built exclusively by RS Software is such that it enables easy integration with other payment infrastructure. Indian government has been fostering relationships with several nations including UAE and France in the recent past. Prime Minister of India, Mr Modi said at the recent Digital India week that "Everyone including the World bank has appreciated it as the best platform".

Making this world a better place to be

The bedrock of India's digital payment infrastructure, the three major platforms have built a solid foundation for India, making it amongst the first few countries globally to announce the launch of central bank digital currency (CBDC). How money moves has undergone and is undergoing huge, unprecedented change - increasingly, cards, digital and mobile payments dominate, and cash is fast on the way out. Advances in technology, the COVID-19 pandemic, cryptocurrency, and more have shaped the movement of money and have redefined roles for banks and cash systems. The COVID-19 pandemic has accelerated the move away from cash. Lots of youngsters don't carry cash anymore. There will come a moment, and it's approaching fast, when merchants and shopkeepers will say, "Why keep accepting cash, we're going to stop accepting cash."

India is leading the world in terms of digital payments innovations. Its payment systems are available 24X7, available to both retail and wholesale customers, they are largely real-time, the cost of transaction is perhaps the lowest in the world, users have an impressive menu of options for doing transactions and digital payments have grown at an impressive rate. While presenting Budget 2022, the Indian Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman stated Digital Rupee, the name of the Central Bank Digital Currency in India, will give a big boost to the digital economy. Digital currency will also lead to a more efficient and cheaper currency management system, she said. In order to counter the cryptocurrency craze, the central banks across the globe are taking a keener look at introducing central bank digital currencies. Central Bank Digital Currencies is the digital form of a country's fiat currency. This will be issued by the federal bank of that particular country. Although it is in digital form, CBDC can be exchanged with the fiat currency of the country.

[As per a PhonePe-Boston Consulting Group report ("Digital payments in India: A $10 trillion opportunity"), India's digital payments market is expected to increase more than threefold from the current $3 trillion to $10 trillion by 2026. This would translate to digital payments constituting 2 out of 3 payment transactions by 2026.]

All that can be digital comes together - Metaverse

The massive decrease in the cost of computing power and the widespread availability of devices able to process information has led to an unprecedented level of connectivity. For the first time, algorithms can be created to read and analyze bank account information and combine this data with other information from disparate sources. Moreover, real-time payments allow for the movement of money in a matter of seconds regardless of the time or date of application. Consumer and business expectations have evolved and when end user demands change, existing players must innovate in order to meet these demands. The maintenance and reporting of real-time balances is essential to allow customers to benefit from real-time payments and open banking. The technology to meet these needs is available today. By using a flexible payments hub, combined with a modern orchestration layer, messaging standards, and API-based interfaces, banks will improve their positions for the future. Customers want banks to provide these services and banks will add value and increase their share of the value chain if they can meet them.

The new payments ecosystem views open banking and real-time payments as two sides of the same coin: they are part of a larger transformation of how banking is conducted today. While banks have a checklist of to-dos, the list of opportunities is even longer.

With digital payments must come digital authentication and security, of course. Biometric measures are tipped to bridge the gap here. According to Juniper research, roughly 90 percent of smartphones worldwide will have a form of biometric capability by 2024, to enable authenticated mobile payments. Juniper's research also forecasts $2.5 trillion in mobile payments, facilitated by biometric data, by 2024, compared with $228 million in 2019.

We are closer to a fully digital payment landscape than we've ever been before, online payments have been scaling steadily over the past 5 - 10 years and the natural evolution of online payments to augmented payments is already happening before our very eyes. Everyday things such as in-game or in-app purchases from places like Fortnite's V-Buck System, the NFT market in places like Opensea, communities, and tokens are replacing traditional systems we all relied upon where the direct consumer can pay the producer of the digital asset directly with no financial intermediary in their decentralized way. The instant element of blockchain and crypto payments means instant processing and settlement of digital assets like NFTs, cryptocurrency and other future discovered digital assets. These assets could be traded, sold, and marketed through the metaverse marketplace tied to an individual's blockchain based payment wallet or equivalent, meaning a secure, instant, scalable way of accepting a payment for commerce. I encourage you to read in this annual report about Metaverse, the emerging future for humanity and also about CBDC, likely to become the way the world pays as it goes through its everyday life.

The digitization of B2B payments

While the use of paper checks continues to decrease by the year, it still accounts for more than 50% of the overall transaction value for B2B payments. When it comes to vendor relationships, businesses are still preparing and sending paper invoices, or emailed invoices that get printed out and annotated by someone in an office who inputs it into an ERP system. The payment experience is even more manual. For example, someone writes paper checks, puts them in envelopes, or inputs payments into a spreadsheet for uploading to the bank for ACH or EFT. Or it's someone with a corporate purchasing card calling the provider and giving the payment details over the phone.

With the recent move to a more remote workforce, businesses see that their employees need to manage their accounts receivable and payable functionality outside of a physical office. Digitizing B2B payments, including accounts payable, accounts receivable, expense reimbursement, and employee-initiated spending, is the solution with significant benefits.

With digital B2B payments, a business has more visibility into what funds are going where and why. In turn, they gain the transparency and control needed to optimize cash flow, reduce errors, and mitigate payment-related fraud. Another benefit in reducing your manual payment processes gets down to the bottom line: saving money. Reducing checks by 10-50% equates to $1.3-$58.3 billion savings each year. The hard costs of B2B check payments disappear when migrating to digital processes including paper, postage, and the time it takes to stuff envelopes. For all of these reasons, global B2B non-cash transactions will increase to nearly 200 billion transactions by 2025, from 121.5 billion in 2020, according to Capgemini estimates.

India's payments journey moving at unprecedented pace

In 2018 RBI's "Payment & Settlement Systems in India: Vision-2021" spelled its core theme for 2019-2021 as "Empowering Exceptional (E) Payment Experience" and its Vision as "Empower every Indian with access to a bouquet of e-payment options that is safe, secure, convenient, quick and affordable". The Vision highlighted the need for continued emphasis on innovation, cyber security, financial inclusion, customer protection and competition. Vision 2021 covered till 31-Dec-2021.

"Vision 2018 has facilitated

- Continued decrease in the share of paper based clearing instruments
- Consistent growth in individual segments of retail electronic payment systems such as the National Electronic Funds Transfer (NEFT), Immediate Payment Service (IMPS) and card transactions
- Increase in registered customer base for mobile banking
- Launch of new products like Unified Payments Interface (UPI) and Bharat QR (BQR)
- Significant growth in acceptance infrastructure
- Accelerated use of Aadhaar in payment systems

The quantitative estimates mentioned in Vision 2021 and the actual value as reported in the "Payment Vision 2025" were:

- Further decrease in use of paper cheques to less than 2% of retail electronic payments, the actual value 0.88%
- Payment systems like UPI / IMPS to register average annualized growth of 100%, and NEFT 40%; UPI grew by 104%, IMPS by 39%
- Digital payment transaction to grow by 4 times from 2069 crore in December 2018 to 8707 crores in December 2021; between March 2019 and March 2022 the digital payment has increased by 216% by volume and 10% by value
- Ratio of debit card usage at only-POS vs POS+ATM to move to 44% by volume and 22% by value (from 15.2% in 2018-19); debit card usage at POS decreased by 3.7% largely because of the pandemic
- Number of card acceptance device to increase to 5 million by end 2021, which along with QR code based digital acceptance to make it 6 times of 2018
- FTS [Fraud to Sales (Fraud value / Sales value) x 10000] count for payment systems is expected to be less than 10 bps for most of the payment systems; for this framework for regulating Payment Aggregators (PAs), e-mandates for recurring transactions, tokenisation of card transactions and Card-on-File Tokenisation (CoFT), setting up of Centralised Payments Fraud Information Registry (CPFIR), geo-tagging of payment system touch points, framework for outsourcing of payment and settlement-related activities by PSOs, etc have been built.

After launch of UPI on 11 April 2016, it has grown phenomenally and in June 2022 reported 5862 billion transactions, worth Rs 10 trillion – all happened in 6 years. We at RS Software are proud to be the technology provider and had developed UPI grounds up that is serving the nation's needs. However, to support the exponential growth RS had to step in and constantly innovate to support the scale-up that the system demanded.

To provide guard against fraud, especially for UPI, which was real-time, new payment type and hence subjected to bot system and business stabilization, NPCI implemented Enterprise Fraud and Risk Management (EFRM) through customized implementation of RS IntelliEdge™ in 11 May 2019 with full fledged multi-channel support accomplished in Oct 2019. This protected citizens a total of Rs. 17.14 trillion as potential savings out of which UPI was 97.67% as recorded between Oct 2020 and May 2022. After implementation, RS Software has been operating the platform for almost 3 years now and keeping up the scale and business demands of the national multichannel fraud and risk management platform diligently.

Bharat Bill Payment System (BBPS), which was launched in April 2018 and did 2.42 million transactions worth Rs. 263.43 crores and did 82.12 million worth Rs. 15,154 crores in June 2022; thus, the volume grew by ~34 times and value grew by ~58 times in little over 4 years. When RS Software had built and launched the system in 2018, there were only a handful of billers and in June 2022 there were 20,062 billers onboarded.

The Payment Vision 2025 states: "Provide every user with Safe, Secure, Fast, Convenient, Accessible, and Affordable e-payment options."

Vision 2021 had 4 goalposts of Competition, Cost, Convenience and Confidence. Payment Vision 2025 states: "As we embark upon the journey of realising Payments Vision 2025, the steps taken so far towards enhanced outreach, customer centricity, cyber security and digital deepening would be further consolidated and built upon through the five pillars of integrity, inclusion, innovation, institutionalisation and internationalisation." Enhancement of cross border payments would focus on four key challenges of cost, speed, access and transparency.

Various initiatives proposed under these five pillars shall have the following ten expected outcomes during the Vision period that ends in 31-Dec-2025 (reproduced from the Payments Vision 2025):

It is very clear that the change would not be incremental but rather a step jump. Multiple initiatives are already underway, and we are hearing about several innovative ideas.

CBDC

An April 2022 Bank for International Settlements (BIS) paper on CBDCs in emerging market economies reiterates the fact that India is leading the world in terms of digital payments innovations, and pinpoints three reasons why CBDC could be useful:

- Although digital payments have grown at a CAGR of 55% over the last five years in India, an RBI pilot survey on retail payment habits of individuals in six cities indicates that cash remains the preferred mode of payment especially for low-value transactions. CBDC could target digitisation of these cash preferences, as long as anonymity is guaranteed.
- India's high currency-to-GDP ratio provides a strong motivation for introducing CBDCs that can reduce the cost of printing, transporting, storing, and distributing currency.
- A third consideration relates to the public demand for virtual currency that has been largely held back by the fear of financial instability. CBDC could provide greater security and viability of holding currency while protecting them from abnormal levels of volatility that some of the private virtual currencies endure. This would help RBI to retain control over domestic monetary policy by preventing the flight of money towards cryptocurrencies and foreign CBDCs.

On April 8, 2022, the RBI reconfirmed that it is now in a position to start testing and running CBDC pilots. The RBI is currently working towards a phased implementation strategy and examining use cases which could be implemented with minimal disruption. Some key issues under examination include:

- The scope of CBDCs – whether they should be used in retail payments or wholesale payments or both
- The underlying technology – whether it should be a distributed or centralised ledger, and whether the choice of technology should vary according to use cases
- The validation mechanism – whether token-based or account-based
- The distribution architecture – whether direct issuance by the RBI or through banks, or a hybrid model with both RBI and intermediary banks
- The degree of anonymity

There are other critical design choices such as whether CBDCs should be non-interest bearing like cash or should they carry positive interest rates (remunerated CBDC). The latter would need to pay competitive rates and allow the public to hold significant amounts. This could in turn disintermediate banks and make fund flows more volatile.

The RBI has been considering pilot projects in CBDC in the wholesale as well as retail segments. Across both segments, the introduction of CBDC has the potential to provide significant benefits, as outlined above. CBDCs are expected to coexist with other forms of currency and payment systems, as ensuring interoperability across different systems would be necessary for ease of transactions and enhanced consumer experience.

New Umbrella Entities

In a bid to boost competition in retail payments in India, the RBI had come up with the proposal of “New Umbrella Entities” (‘NUE’) to promote private participation. Envisioned as an alternative to NPCI, NUE would be primarily responsible for developing new payment systems, standards and technologies, and clearing and settlement mechanisms, while monitoring and preventing fraud. This was expected to boost transaction volumes and promote financial inclusion in the country. Although there has been a delay in approving the licences of the applications by the RBI - Six consortia formed by various banks, card networks and corporate groups are reported to have put in applications to set up NUEs - the general opinion is that considering the growing volumes of digital transactions, it is already time for a reliable alternative, especially for B2B payments in the country that still has unaddressed challenges that NUEs could address.

Payment Aggregators

In order to ensure safety of merchants and consumers, the RBI issued a payment aggregator (PA) framework in March 2020 stating that payment gateways will be mandated to have a license in order to acquire merchants and provide them with digital payments acceptance solutions. For this, RBI had instructed non-bank companies offering PA services to apply for authorisation by June 30, 2021, which was later pushed to September 30, 2021. Under RBI's evaluation process, about 185 fintech enterprises and start-ups submitted their proposals for a payment aggregator license. The few firms authorized to operate as payment aggregators in India will come under the direct purview of the RBI. Razorpay, Pine Labs and U.S.-based payments firm Stripe have received the in-principal nod from RBI for the PA licence. In the absence of the license, e-commerce and other players will either have to have a tie-up with a bank that can aggregate payments on their behalf (it will increase costs) or will have to depend on a PA, leading to more business for these licensed entities. The companies will have to conduct an audit within the next six months to get a final nod, in-line with RBI's procedure for all licenses.

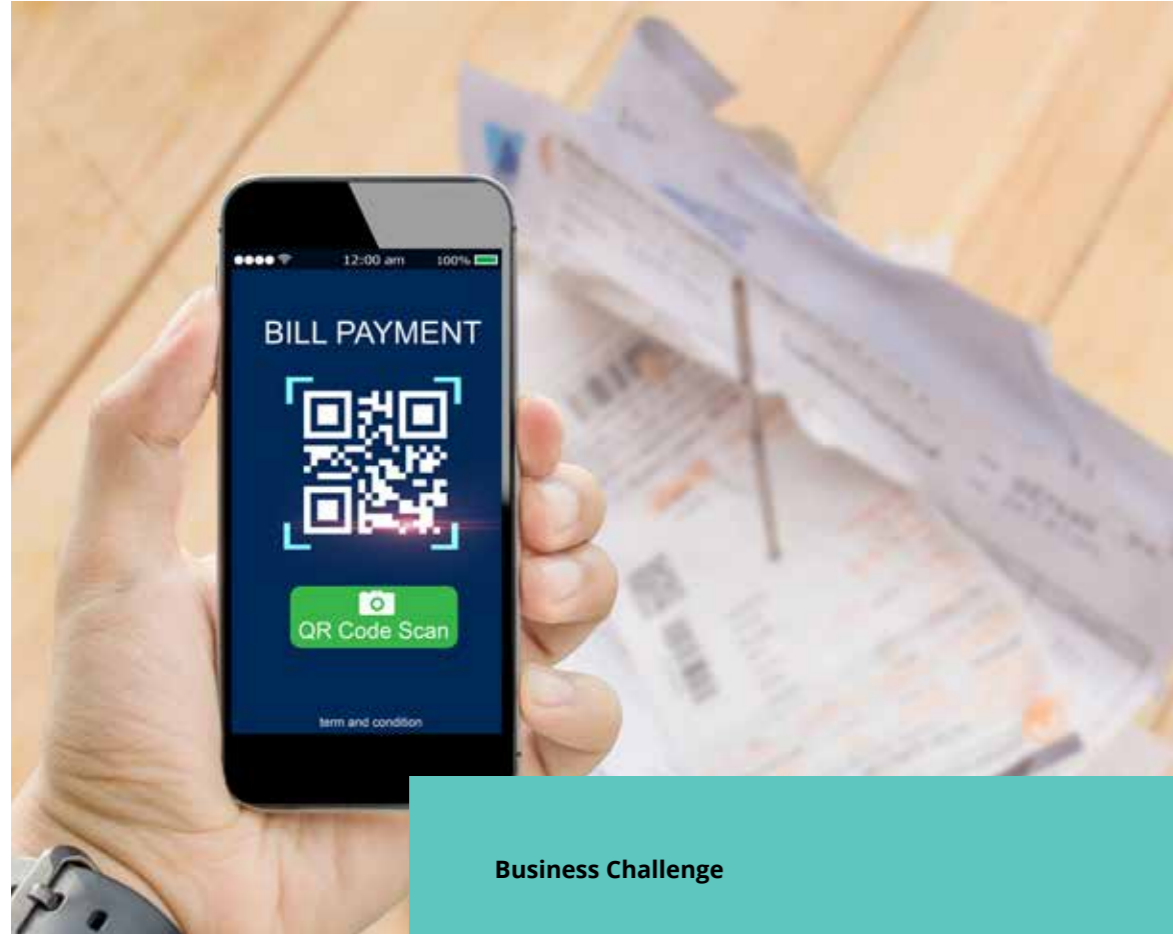

“ Shiny new technologies such as blockchain may be cool, but less flashy efforts driving open standards and interoperability are delivering a real revolution that flies under the radar of the tech gurus in England's Shoreditch and America's Silicon Valley. India is very astutely leaping ahead of the world ”

Anytime anywhere bill payments

Bill Payment Platform

National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI)

Business Challenge

The size of the billing market in India was more than USD 90 billion in 2016, and about 98% of these bill payments were made using cash or check. Several bill payment aggregators were operating in silos in this heavily fragmented market. Without a countrywide integrated billing system, attempts to integrate with these players involved extensive paperwork, delays, transaction failures, and poor customer support.

To address this problem, the client commissioned the Bharat Bill Payment System (BBPS), a nationwide integrated bill payment system that offers interoperable and accessible bill payment services to customers through a network of agents, allowing multiple payment modes, and providing instant confirmation of payment. NPCI floated a global RFP, to procure this unique platform for India.

Solution

BBPS - Central platform

RS Software using its payments domain expertise built over 23 years, and combining different digital assets built at RS Payments innovation lab., offered a solution stack that would deliver the 1st of its kind, bill payment network, architected with principles of API first and Mobile first. The highly innovation solution approach combined with design thinking led to RS Software winning the global RFP.

The solution design assumed the overall ecosystem to have a Central Unit that would govern, manage disputes, and route transactions through the unified rails and multiple operating units that would connect to the Central Unit, and facilitate the processing of bills across multiple customers (both individual and corporate) and the billers. Hence the system was visualized as the Bharat Bill Payment Central Unit that sets operational, technical, and business standards for the entire platform, and the numerous Bharat Bill Payment Operating Units that connect to the Central Unit and adhere to its directives.

The nationwide integrated bill payment platform build achieved the following and onboarded more than sixty banking and non-banking entities.

- End-to-end implementation of core transaction processing integrated with the existing nationwide digital platform of NPCI
- Channels for bill payment through the web, mobile, and in-person
- On-boarding portal for the customer, agent, and agent institutions along with self-registration features
- Management of complaints and disputes
- Customer dashboard
- Bill fetch and processing lifecycle
- Alerts and notifications
- MIS Reports

BBPSOU platform

The BBPSOU platform has been built to allow the banks to function as the Operating Units of the BBPS – central platform

Key features:

- Dashboards providing transaction history, transaction pattern, complaint history, registered biller list, searching pending bills, etc.
- Multiple bill fetch and payment for different service providers
- Scheduler to collect entire billing information for subscribed billers on a given date for a customer
- Automatic payment schedules for Utilities
- Reconciliation & Settlement process for refund and reversal transactions

BBPS platform has high adoption since its launch, and increasingly more and more customers are able to pay digitally, thus transforming a nation of billion+ people. It is one of the most successful use cases globally of request to pay.

BBPS platform scaled up three times the transaction volume projected by NPCI in year three post-go-live, clocking ~1 billion transactions in year three vs 332 million projected.

CBDC - India

While presenting Budget 2022, the Indian Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman stated Digital Rupee, the name of the Central Bank Digital Currency in India, will give a big boost to the digital economy. Digital currency will also lead to a more efficient and cheaper currency management system, she said. In order to counter the cryptocurrency craze, the central banks across the globe are taking a keener look at introducing central bank digital currencies. Central Bank Digital Currencies is the digital form of a country's fiat currency. This will be issued by the federal bank of that particular country. Although it is in digital form, CBDC can be exchanged with the fiat currency of the country.

Why do we need CBDC in India?

India is leading the world in terms of digital payments innovations. Its payment systems are available 24x7, available to both retail and wholesale customers, they are largely real-time, the cost of transaction is perhaps the lowest in the world, users have an impressive menu of options for doing transactions and digital payments have grown at an impressive rate.

The adoption of CBDC has been justified for the following reasons:

- Central banks, faced with dwindling usage of paper currency, seek to popularise a more acceptable electronic form of currency (like Sweden)
- Jurisdictions with significant physical cash usage seeking to make issuance more efficient (like Denmark, Germany, or Japan or even the US)
- Central banks seek to meet the public's need for digital currencies, manifested in the increasing use of private virtual currencies, and thereby avoid the more damaging consequences of private currencies

However, the introduction of CBDCs poses a few major challenges. The first challenge is the increased threats to the privacy of individuals. The second is choosing the privacy & security for enhancing technology that needs to be employed and the last challenge is the regulatory architecture which has to be set up to combat issues that include data breaches.

The challenge to tackle is the heightened risk to the users' privacy, provided that the federal bank could end up handling a huge amount of data about the user transactions as it has serious implications provided that digital currencies will not render users the level of privacy as well as anonymity offered by transacting in cash.

Apart from that, the data stored with the federal bank in a centralized system will hold higher security risks, and therefore, robust data security systems will have to be set up in order to prevent data breaches. Hence, it is highly crucial to implement the right technology which will back the issue of CBDCs (central bank digital currencies).

The other challenge is the choice of technology implemented for central bank digital currencies is critical as it should not only be scalable, with almost zero latency, but also secure and, privacy-preserving. The most logical candidate for central bank digital currencies should be a conventional multi-tier web architecture however this also possesses a potential downside.

While the RBI has begun to work on Central Bank Digital Currency and other fintech-related activities, it has recently set up a new fintech department which will be the central point of contact in the Reserve Bank of India for all fintech-related activities.

According to Aniket Jindal, Co-founder, Biconomy, "The blockchain-based digital rupee is a welcome step. While the critics rightly point out that it's not decentralized & issued by the govt, we need to understand that the mainstream adoption of web3 & crypto won't happen overnight. It will happen slowly with small steps toward our eventual goals. And such a blockchain-based digital rupee has the potential for being a big step in onboarding 100s of millions of Indians into the blockchain economy. It will also help open one of the largest economies to innovations in the web3 ecosystem."

A survey conducted by Bank of International Settlements (BIS) in 2021 revealed that 86% of the central banks were exploring the potential of CBDCs and about 15% of the states are set to launch their pilot projects. The CBDC will fulfil the basic functions as a medium of exchange, unit of account, store of value, and standard of deferred payment.

According to a note released by the State Bank of India (SBI), the CBDC has the potential to offer benefits in terms of liquidity, scalability, acceptance, ease of transactions and faster settlement in comparison with existing forms of money. It can be a pragmatic shift to a cashless economy soon. The adoption of CBDC will improve and make it easier for people to use with the supporting infrastructure provided by the government. It will boost the government's mission to move towards the digital economy. It can establish an environment created for interoperability whereby faster real-time remittance occurs.

The RBI confirmed in May 2022 that India's CBDC will be rolled out in 2022. CBDC will significantly bring down time taken for cross-border transactions and make transactions real-time. The Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi said that the CBDC launched by RBI will be as good as India's fiat currency – Indian National Rupee (INR) and will be exchangeable to the cash at par. It is sovereign currency in an electronic form and will appear as liability (currency in circulation) on a central bank's balance sheet, says the RBI website.

In an interview in May 2022, Aruna Sharma, a practitioner of development economics and former secretary, Ministry of Electronics and IT, said "CBDC will be stable and as good as legal tender. It will enable faster transactions at much lesser cost, including FEMA compliant cross-border transactions". Data Protection Bill for 'Personal Data' is a must for a sovereign country and will be applicable to the entire digital world, she added.

“The CBDC launched by RBI will be as good as India's fiat currency – Indian National Rupee (INR) and will be exchangeable to the cash at par”

RS Software investing in Distributed Ledger Technology (DLT) as it gains interest among value chain stakeholders

Distributed Ledger Technology (DLT), popularly known as blockchain was invented in 2008 by one or more persons under the pseudonym Satoshi Nakamoto. In 2018, Gartner reported that only 1% of CIOs indicated adoption of the technology in their organizations, which, in 2019, rose to 5% of CIOs considering it to be game-changer technology. Bitcoin was an application of blockchain for monetary value which was co-invented with blockchain by Satoshi. The 'permissionless' aspect along with 'privacy' made it a tool in the hands of wrongdoers which resulted in infamous use cases of payments on bitcoin. Furthermore, it needed high power usage which is akin to high carbon footprint. These drawbacks kept out the mainstream payment players from participating in this innovation. However, very recently, variations of blockchain like Litecoin, Ethereum, Concordium, etc. are addressing many of the issues and this is helping adoption of the technology.

At RS Software we had explored the technology in the RS Payments Innovation Labs. Following were the important findings from a business usage perspective.

1. User Identity: The 'user identity' was an important aspect even if the 'privacy' or 'anonymity' aspect is preserved, especially for its usage in electronic payments. Moreover, the permissionless aspect is a great feature, but as it attracted enormous processing power and users had misused anonymity, many 'permissioned' DLTs were gaining ground.

2. Power Guzzler: One of the main reasons of high-power usage was how the miners made money while mining. The bane of high-power wastage was because of unbridled mining that used the process of 'Proof-of-Work' (PoW). In contrast 'Proof-of-Stake' (PoS) reduces the incentive for arbitrarily mining of blockchain, thus saving energy.

3. Smart Contract: Another important aspect is Smart Contracts that permit trusted transactions and agreements to be carried out among disparate, anonymous parties without the need for a central authority, legal system, or external enforcement mechanism. In many of the matured alternative implementations of blockchain and DLT, production level code samples for Smart Contracts exist in Git for reuse. However, in upcoming solutions, code samples exist for the same but are not field tested at scale.

We had experimented with Ethereum in the past and have had discussions with Concordium as well to explore their technology in implementing use cases applicable for payments and related areas.

Some of the use cases are:

1. Stored Value or Prepaid Instruments with traceability of fund flow – today if someone buys a bunch of Gift Cards and gives them out to some people, there is no trace of fund flow possible as the buyer and the users can remain anonymous. This can be addressed by implementing the service to some extent (at least for the buyer of the cards) by using blockchain. The open and permissionless nature of Concordium can help implement the same yet improve the regulatory aspects.
2. Closed loop payment instruments – the unit of value in Concordium, called Global Transaction Unit (GTU) can be transferred within entities who are within the closed loop, which is useful for common platforms (like Amazon, Flipkart) or upcoming Super Apps.
3. Crowdsourced Lending – with the rise of Buy Now Pay Later (BNPL) schemes, blockchain can be used to build an exchange for lending where micro-lenders may invest and get decent low risk high IRR.
4. Co-owning High Value Assets – periodic time or event triggered payment between anonymous parties based on smart contracts. This can be leveraged for owning fractional assets, worth very high value, incrementally using systematic investment plans, like N-number of people owning a software, or a rare oil painting, a sculpture, or a diamond, etc. as an investment option. The item itself can be part of assets in the blockchain.
5. Cross Border Payments – As identity is baked into the protocol of Concordium, it can eventually be used for cross border or at least cross regional payments. It may take time for this use case to blossom.

Overall activities that RS Payments Innovation Lab has laid out are as follows:

1.	Familiarization <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Exploring the smart contract space ➤ Connecting to the Testnet/Mainnet
2.	Use Case Mapping to Technology <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Study implementation of fungible tokens ➤ Study of the protocol used
3.	Architecture and Design <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Implementing APIs ➤ Implementing privacy and security ➤ Implementing the use case
4.	Engineering
5.	POC Demo

As the market gears up to deploy blockchain technology RS Payments Innovation Lab has built a roadmap to internalise the technology in the organization.

Financial and marketing strategy come together to strengthen the long-term growth

The company's strategic move to build products and platforms at significant investment has started to generate interest and is helping to get traction with some powerful opportunities. RS product suite is getting recognized in important markets, creating strategic partnerships, the foundation for the company's long-term growth.

Partnership model for growth

- Hitachi payments, India, 100% subsidiary of Hitachi, a $90 Billion company: India and global markets
- Deloitte, Canada: Canada, United States, and any strategic opportunity globally
- The Strawhecker Group: Merchant acquiring and payment acceptance in North America and Europe, including strategic opportunities globally
- NIPL: The objective of this partnership is to explore international markets with NIPL, subsidiary of NPCI, and for RS Software to implement NPCI products in countries where NIPL wins the contract.

In India we operate for NPCI, India's national Enterprise Fraud and Risk Management platform (EFRM). The IP of this platform belongs to RS Software. The UPI and BBPS platforms, built exclusively by RS Software and launched in 2016 by NPCI, continue to be enhanced by us to meet the market's demands, as evidenced by the outstanding adoption of digital payments in India.

The company is pursuing a three-prong growth strategy

- Transition to Innovation and product-lead revenue
- Strategic partnerships to achieve revenue growth
- Major cost management initiatives to optimize its financial structure

RS Software's growth direction is risk-managed, with 30 years of implementation track record and a strategic partnership model for product and innovation lead growth.

During the five years starting with April 2016, the company has generated revenue of ~ Rs 3 billion, with a gross contribution margin of ~27%. Recognizing the significant multi-trillion-dollar opportunity in payments modernization, the company continues to invest and has already invested in excess of ~Rs 1 billion from its own cash reserves. During the last 15 years, the company has invested in RS School of Payments and RS Payments Innovation Lab, both of which have institutionalized our ability to respond quickly to the changing needs of our customers. This foundation has helped the company to successfully transition in the immediate past to deliver:

- Digital-first capabilities – API-first, Mobile-first, and Cloud-first
- Products and Platforms lead revenue model, combined with a core foundation in services

The company's leadership is committed to execute a fine balance that helps to achieve optimal cashflow based financial strategy, while reaching out in the market with its strategic partnering model to go after the continuing growth opportunities in payments modernization.

RS Software has demonstrated a track record of success that has translated into building trust and stability over three decades. Today, the company's solutions are installed in 12 of the top 20 banks in India. The four major platforms built by RS Software cumulatively process 350+ billion transactions annually, giving the company a rare track record in the payment domain. We continue to march towards our vision of enabling payments at the speed of thought.

Management Discussion Analysis

Revenue opportunities and sales performance

What are the principal trends influencing the revenue for RS Software?

The Digital boom:

Globally, the economic effects of the Covid-19 pandemic have boosted the adoption of digital solutions to drive innovation, customer reach and business growth. Digital payments is an integral part of such business and technology trends, and therefore the growth of its adoption has reached an all-time high. Importantly are developments in what is being termed as metaverse where all digital comes together. Please read all about Metaverse at the start of our annual report. Central bank digital currencies (CBDC) are an integral part of our future and India is launching its CBDC in 2023, as announced by the finance minister during the national budget presentation in February this year. Please read the sections in this report on CBDC, and in particular CBDC, India.

Market trends and key opportunity areas:

In FY21, as the pandemic was beginning to come under control, we had analysed the market trends and had identified the top opportunity areas in digital payments, namely -

- i. Account-to-account real-time payments (RTP) - for country-level systems and for banks/financial institutions
- ii. Application areas such as bill payments for faster adoption of digital payments
- iii. Similarly, fraud and risk management to ensure end-user confidence and trust, and therefore, drive further adoption of digital payment
- iv. Acquiring and acceptance solutions to enable digital payment solutions and innovation for merchants, businesses, and end-consumers
- v. At the same time, while newer digital payment solutions are implemented for first-time adoption, countries, banks/financial institutions, and payment service providers, who have already adopted digital payments and RTP, are looking to either modernise their existing payment systems, and/or are planning to build innovative solutions to offer more value-added services to businesses and end-customers.

We expect to see a continuation of the above trends at least for the next 5 years globally. The focus is on all categories of customer and business payments – person-to-person (P2P), customer-and-business (B2C), and business-to-business (B2B), including government payments.

Additional trends globally:

Therefore, we see the following additional trends also gathering attention and momentum across several countries, and please read the sections on Global payment opportunities, and

- i. Multi-rail platform by using a common code base across multiple payment options. This has already been implemented for India, and RS has been an integral part of this implementation.
- ii. The bill payment use-case being extended to also cater to invoice (B2B) payments which may also need integrations with backend supply chain.
- iii. More efficient, real-time and more cost effective cross-border payments.
- iv. Several countries are aiming to have their own CBDC (Central Bank Digital Currency), which would be closely aligned to their central RTP infrastructure.
- v. More innovative solutions to drive greater adoption, financial inclusion, and value-added services – e.g., offline payments (therefore, to some extent, sacrificing real-time for reliable transactions), sound wave-based payments (data-over-voice spectrum reduces cost of transactions), super-apps (vertically integrated purchase-to-payment solutions), invisible payments (auto-debit with preset limits on commerce-to-payments apps).
- vi. Combining payments with data, and using AI and ML based technology solution to provide solutions catering to –
 - a. Highly efficient and effective KYC, screening, fraud, risk, and AML solutions for highly secure digital payment transactions
 - b. New customer acquisition and effective cross-selling into existing customers to drive profitable growth for businesses

- c. More choices of products and services, better deals and superior user experience for consumers and businesses

What were the principal challenges faced during FY 2021-22, resulting in lower revenue?

For expanding our reach to our target customers, in FY 2020-21, we identified target channel partners that have a far better global market presence and with the necessary financial qualifications to lead the bid in case of payments modernization at central infrastructure level. As we engaged with the target global partners, we found that it takes lot longer to interlock the working together processes, and most important is sorting out the initial steps to establish go to market activity. The teething troubles resulted in much slower ramp up in revenue during the FY22.

Focus on existing accounts for revenue growth:

We continued to improve our engagement with our existing clients. We increased our penetration through cross-sell efforts at one of our top accounts, with a high value, and high-quality revenue outlook for FY 2022-23 for this account. We are confident of significantly increasing our transaction-based revenue in the Indian geography. This has been made possible with sustained focus in strategic areas.

Sales execution and productivity of salesforce:

The sales team used digital tools and channels to collaborate internally and engage with our partners and customers. We further enhanced our website to improve our brand and positioning, drive increase in visitors and provide a better experience as they go through our offerings and capabilities. We continued our focus on digital marketing through social media to promote our products with the focus dominantly on Europe, US and Canada markets. We refined the performance metrics to measure our sales execution and the productivity of our salesforce. This has helped us in improving our sales pipeline both for the short and the medium term. This will directly reflect on our revenues over the next three years, as we monetise our investment into our products suite, namely RS RTPS™, RS BillAbhi™, RS IntelliEdge™, RS DigitalEdge™ and Payabhi®.

Where is your focus to generate revenue in FY 2022-23?

We expect to achieve the following in FY 2022-23:

- i. Cross-sell and grow at one of our large customers in the areas of RTP, Bill Payments and FRM, and multi-rail areas.
- ii. Leverage our partnerships and win new deals in each of the following focus areas for a new platform implementation, or modernization of an existing payment system globally,
 - a. Central (country-level) RTP infrastructure, with our product, RS RTPS™
 - b. Central bill payment infrastructure, with our product, RS BillAbhi™
 - c. FRM for a central infrastructure and/or a bank/financial institute, with our product, RS IntelliEdge™
 - d. Banks' connectivity into central RTP and/or bill payment infrastructure, with our product, RS RealEdge™
 - e. Digital overlay layer for a central or bank-specific payment infrastructure for enabling value-added services, with our product, RS DigitalEdge™
 - f. Acquiring and acceptance for at least one leading payment service provider, with our product, Payabhi®

Finance

What has been the biggest challenge for the finance process in FY22?

To meet the cashflow focused strategy that does not compromise on the growth strategy of the company.

How did you meet the challenge?

The Finance team focused on building strategic cost structure that would meet the short-term requirements of the company, and allow it to prepare for the longer-term growth at the same time. This included allocation of budgets very carefully and tracking cost productivity at all levels in the organization. Treasury management continues to be an important focus, in addition to meeting all the statutory requirements of a public listed company.

Risk and Response

With consistent financial losses for the past 5 years, what is the viability of the company's ability to stay in business?

During the five years starting with April 2016, the company has generated revenue of ~ Rs 3 billion, with a gross contribution margin of ~27%. Recognizing the significant multi-trillion-dollar opportunity in payments modernization, the company continues to invest and has already invested in excess of ~Rs 1 billion from its own cash reserves. During the last 15 years, the company has invested in RS School of Payments and RS Payments Innovation Lab, both of which have institutionalized our ability to respond quickly to the changing needs of our customers. This foundation has helped the company to successfully transition in the immediate past to deliver:

- Digital-first capabilities – API-first, Mobile-first, and Cloud-first
- Products and Platforms lead revenue model, combined with a core foundation in services

The company chose to elect a conservative approach where the investments have been written off in each fiscal year, building, in turn, an extensive portfolio of assets, the value of which is off the balance sheet. Importantly, the financial foundation continues to be good and strong.

- Public listed on India's NSE and BSE stock exchanges
- Positive net worth
- Cash reserves on the balance sheet
- Zero debt for the past 14 years
- Financial structure growth-friendly with favorable debt and equity expansion available

The Company is pursuing a three-fold growth strategy:

- Transition to Innovation and product-lead revenue
- Strategic partnerships to achieve revenue growth
- Major cost management initiatives to optimize its financial structure

What is the impact of Covid-19 on your company?

The impact of Covid-19 is going to be significant in all markets where the company operates. Fortunately for us the impact is positive as it creates a major growth in going digital, which translates to acceleration in the use of digital payments. For instance, China is already starting to see Ecommerce/Mcommerce ahead of physical retail. This trend is likely to accelerate globally in all markets. At the same time we have increased the overall governance of all policies and practices brought about by the impact of Covid-19, especially people focused impact.

What are the Internal control systems in place and the governance for its implementation?

The Company's internal audit system has been continuously monitored and updated to ensure that assets are safeguarded, established regulations are complied with and pending issues are addressed promptly. The Audit Committee reviews reports presented by the internal auditors on a routine basis and takes corrective actions if and when necessary. It maintains a constant dialogue with statutory and internal auditors to ensure that internal control systems are operating effectively.

People are the largest asset, how do you ensure people being current in their knowledge to contribute to the growth of the company? Are there any technology risks?

The Company is focused to ensure increase in the value of human capital through the development of individual and collective skills and knowledge that remain essential for continuous growth. The Company continues to implement programs for skill development. Knowledge management, RS School of Payments and RS Payments Innovation Lab are the key assets for the growth of our people, and the company is proactive in ensuring that we always remain current on adoption of relevant technologies.

Are there regulatory risks in your industry?

Yes, the payments industry is going through major transformation, which is making the regulators very active, sometimes proactive, and sometimes reactive. Fortunately, all this is positive for the growth of the payments industry, creating a larger market opportunity.

HR Highlights

What were some of the Employee focused key initiatives taken by the company?

RS Software has taken the following key initiatives towards greater employee focus:

- The organization moved from the work-from-home (WFH) that was adopted during Covid time to the hybrid model (partly WFH and partly from RS office). Leadership team and managers set the example by working from RS Towers almost every day, and they decided which personnel on their team needs to work from office on which days. At the same time, employee safety continued to be the top criteria while deciding the details of the hybrid mode. HR processes enhanced to ensure all elements of human touch while working in the hybrid model. All of this, together, has helped improve employee engagement, employee morale and overall productivity.
- The employee health insurance scheme was enhanced with added benefits, including Covid-19 coverage
- Tied-up with leading medical institutions to ensure convenience in vaccination for employees and their dependants
- Implemented additional risk management processes to ensure effectiveness in 100% availability of Infrastructure to support Delivery, Operations, and Innovation. Employees now have more direct access (in-person or remotely) to support functions/teams for faster better service levels and faster turnaround time.

How did you ensure communication with employees during FY22 when most employees were working from home?

The RS workforce operated primarily in a work-from-home model during FY 2021-22. During the first half of the fiscal, almost 95% of our workforce worked from home. As the Covid-19 situation improved and our employees got vaccinated, on an average, 20% of our Delivery organization and key Support personnel started working from RS Software office. Importantly, our leadership team started regularly working from office during the second half of FY 2021-22.

During the fiscal, we ensured employee communication using the following execution framework;

- We invested in an organization-level collaboration platform which all our employees adopted to engage with each other for all forms of communication – email, audio and video calls for 1:1 and team discussions. This had a very positive effect in terms of our teams' productivity and it also improved our engagement with clients. The collaboration platform also helped in bonding our employees far more effectively.
- During the first quarter, while most of the workforce worked from home, the executive management team, led by the CEO, had focused open-house sessions with the entire workforce, in smaller groups, through audio-video meetings using the company's collaboration platform. The employees were updated on the company's performance in the previous year, the strategy and business plan for the fiscal, and therefore the key business and employee related initiatives that we would execute during the fiscal. The objective was to ensure that the complete workforce fully understands the company's direction and plans, and everyone is aligned with it for an effective execution. The executive management's engagement with all employees was consistently maintained and executed 2-3 times each quarter to share updates on the company's performance and seek inputs and feedback from them for any improvements. This ensured that the employees were fully involved in taking the company to the next level.

- The operational leaders in our Innovation, Delivery and Support functions had weekly meetings with their teams to not only manage the business execution, but to also share progress updates of the company and seek their teams' inputs related to day-to-day operational aspects. Here again, the collaboration platform was widely used for open and seamless communication to ensure each team's effective execution on client-facing projects and internal organizational initiatives.
- The CEO and the executive management team had skip-level meetings to drive a culture of open communication and employee participation at all levels. This helped improve the people management for all leaders in the organization and the overall employee morale and satisfaction.

What are the key actions taken by HR during the FY22?

Since the industry experienced a challenging period during the Covid pandemic, which lasted for almost the whole of FY21, we at RS Software were determined to apply our learnings from that experience to our execution in FY22. In doing so, we implemented the following actions in FY22:

- Fiscal FY23 began with a shift from an almost 100% work-from-home at the beginning of the fiscal to a hybrid model by the end of Q2-FY22. As listed above, high degree of attention was given to hygiene safety, resetting the in-office work environment, and employee engagement, including improved employee communication.
- As the world was poised to bounce back and accelerate growth given the new, emerging opportunities in digital payments, we quickly enhanced our focus on the go-to-market and sales engine. We continued our focus with our Sales and Sales support teams through the sales war-room calls, we invested in a more modern and effective collaboration platform across the company, and increased our focus on creating new sales pipeline through superior outreach and coverage of the market, and improved offerings and collaterals.
- Given the changed market conditions for talent acquisition and retention, performance management across all levels, employee remuneration for annual salary increments in the case of existing employees, talent acquisition, and employee retention were the key focus areas in FY22. Through these key initiatives, we used this opportunity to restructure our project delivery teams for more effective delivery performance and an improved and more balanced cost structure across the Delivery and Innovation organization. It helped provide opportunities to existing and new talent to assume higher responsibilities and therefore develop a more 'hungry' workforce wanting to learn more and faster, and execute better to achieve the desired business results.

- We focused on employee engagement, with increased interaction between executive management and the employees. Executive management updated the workforce of the company's strategy and progress each month, which helped in retaining key talent and in motivating our workforce to contribute that much more towards the company's success. Many employees are also motivated to take up larger responsibilities and play a more significant role. It has helped the company in fulfilling key positions in our project delivery and business growth.

What are the key practices in HR that are helping the company to achieve the goals set by the transformation the company is pursuing?

The following HR practices are helping the company significantly in achieving the transformational goals that we are pursuing:

- HR is enabling continuous employee engagement, across all leadership levels, through digital channels and tools, and also through in-person interactions and focused sessions.
- There is a special focus on training and building competencies that are directly aligned with the company's business plan. The competency building also takes into consideration the performance, strengths and capabilities of every individual, the existing team composition, and the employee's career growth aspirations. Highly knowledgeable and key leaders in the company are directly involved in driving this focused exercise, and the same is assessed each month for effectiveness and results.

➤ The performance management system has been refined to ensure better individual and team performances contributing to the company's business goals, and also ensuring retention of quality talent. We have taken judicious calls in deciding the accountability structure for each of the following key areas:

- Organization and team goals - financial and non-Financial
- Project delivery to clients – therefore, client delight
- Innovation and product development
- Self (employee) development

➤ Overall, we have established a people, process and performance oriented culture, that recognizes the strengths of our human capital and also the company's needs towards its business plans, and with a commitment to achieve a win-win result for the organization as a whole and every employee.

5. What are HR's plans/goals in FY23?

We have developed a healthy sales pipeline and we expect quality growth in FY23. To help achieve our business goals in FY23, we have laid down the following key plans for HR, which will be evaluated on a monthly basis against target KPIs and defined metrics:

➤ Talent acquisition: Taking into consideration the projected employee strength month-on-month, we plan to attract and hire a combination of experienced professionals and fresh graduates, dominantly with qualifications in computer science and engineering, across multiple roles in our Innovation/Products and Delivery organizations. The talent acquisition process, including channels and partners, evaluation methods, and onboarding and training have been customised in order to meet the target number for fulfilment and high quality performance.

➤ Talent management: Ensuring right hire and allocation for the right role, competency building, managing employee performance, talent mobility, HR practices and policies, and effective employee engagement, together will drive our end-to-end talent management.

➤ Induction program: We believe that starting right through a high quality, effective induction helps ensure better employee performance and morale. In view of this, we have enhanced our employee induction program keeping our fulfilment plan in mind, and therefore customised the agenda and its execution to be able to meet our FY23 goals. We are effectively leveraging RS School of Payments and our knowledge repository in this initiative.

➤ Employee morale and satisfaction: Our objective is to continue to develop a high quality workforce, that is fully engaged and actively participates in the company's pursuit of its strategic growth. For this, we believe employee morale is key, and therefore we have defined employee engagement on a continuous basis to be one of the key KPAs for HR and every member of the senior leadership team. Through this initiative, we are also targeting a higher retention of our talent, which will also yield better returns over the coming years.

- Economic Scenario, outlook and strategy

We are closer to a fully digital payment landscape than we've ever been before, online payments have been scaling steadily over the past 5 – 10 years and the natural evolution of online payments to augmented payments is already happening before our very eyes. Towards the end of 2021 came a resurgence of interest in the metaverse, opening a door on the subject to many more people. First, Facebook rebranded to Meta, and shifted focus from social media to a new platform—the meta universe (or metaverse for short). Within a few weeks, both Microsoft and Nvidia updated analysts on their own metaverse ambitions. And, soon after, The Economist magazine announced to its global readership that “something metaverse-shaped lying in the relatively near future is an idea worth taking seriously.”

The metaverse represents a strategic inflection point for today's financial institutions. Its arrival accentuates and accelerates three big trends that were already in play. Financial institutions need to address these trends to enable future success – both within the metaverse itself and across the wider world of digital commerce. According to Mckinsey the metaverse is still being defined, both literally and figuratively. Yet its potential to unleash the next wave of digital disruption seems increasingly clear, with real-life benefits already emerging for early adopting users and companies.

Payments are the lifeblood of today's global economy. Issuers, networks, payments processors, and merchant acquirers are investing heavily to retool their payments systems, capitalizing on several advances in technology to better align with customer preferences and sector-specific business requirements. In this article we examine recent trends in payments technology modernization, and four emergent technologies that are now—or about to—spark a wave of innovation. Disruption and innovation in payments technology, of course, is ongoing. Real-time payments, already commonplace in many geographies, are gaining ground.

The first section of this annual report has details included on the various aspects of the payments industry which impact our company and are creating the medium to long term growth opportunities. We have also detailed our growth strategy as a result of these opportunities.

The current market outlook and positioning of your Company has been covered separately as a part of this Annual Report in various sections as an addendum along with other analysis and discussion on performance

Information Other than the Standalone Financial Statements and Auditor's Report Thereon

The Company's Board of Directors is responsible for the preparation of the other information. The other information comprises the information included in the Management Discussion and Analysis, Directors Report including Annexures to Directors' Report, Report on Corporate Governance but does not include the Standalone Financial Statements and our auditors' report thereon. The Management Discussion and Analysis, Directors' Report including Annexures to Directors' Report and Report on Corporate Governance are expected to be made available to us after the date of this auditor's report.

Our opinion on the standalone financial statements does not cover the other information and we will not express any form of assurance conclusion thereon.

In connection with our audit of the standalone financial statements, our responsibility is to read the other information identified above when it becomes available and, in doing so, consider whether the other information is materially inconsistent with the standalone financial statements or out knowledge obtained in the audit or otherwise appears to be materially misstated.

When we read the annual report, if we conclude that there is a material misstatement therein, we are required to communicate the matter to those charged with governance and take appropriate action as applicable under the relevant laws and regulations.

Responsibility of Management and those charged with Governance for the Standalone Financial Statements

The Company's Board of Directors is responsible for the matters stated in section 134(5) of the Companies Act, 2013 ("the Act") with respect to the preparation of these standalone financial statements that give a true and fair view of the financial position, financial performance, total comprehensive income (changes in equity) and cash flows of the Company in accordance with the Ind AS and accounting principles generally accepted in India, including the accounting Standards specified under section 133 of the Act, 2013 read with relevant rules issued thereunder and other Accounting principles generally accepted in India. This responsibility also includes maintenance of adequate accounting records in accordance with the provisions of the Act for safeguarding of the assets of the Company and for preventing and detecting frauds and other irregularities; selection and application of appropriate implementation and maintenance of accounting policies; making judgments and estimates that are reasonable and prudent; and design, implementation and maintenance of adequate that were operating effectively for ensuring the accuracy and completeness of the accounting records, relevant to the preparation and presentation of the standalone financial statement that give a true and fair view and are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

In preparing the standalone financial statements, management is responsible for assessing the Company's ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing, as applicable, matters related to going concern and using the going concern basis of accounting unless management either intends to liquidate the Company or to cease operations, or has no realistic alternative but to do so.

Those Board of Directors are also responsible for overseeing the company's financial reporting process.

Auditor's Responsibility for the Audit of the Financial Statements

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the Standalone financial statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor's report that includes our opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with SAs will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of these financial statements.

As part of an audit in accordance with SAs, we exercise professional judgment and maintain professional skepticism throughout the audit. We also:

- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the Standalone Financial Statements, whether due to fraud or error, design and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks, and obtain audit evidence that is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control.
- Obtain an understanding of internal controls relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances. Under section 143(3)(i) of the Act, we are also responsible for expressing our opinion on whether the Company has adequate internal financial controls system in place and the operating effectiveness of such controls.
- Evaluate the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates and related disclosures made by management.

- Conclude on the appropriateness of management's use of the going concern basis of accounting and, based on the audit evidence obtained, whether a material uncertainty exists related to events or conditions that may cast significant doubt on the ability of the Company to continue as a going concern. If we conclude that a material uncertainty exists, we are required to draw attention in our auditor's report to the related disclosures in the interim consolidated financial statements or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify our opinion. Our conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of our auditor's report. However, future events or conditions may cause the Company to cease to continue as a going concern.
- Evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the standalone financial statements, including the disclosures, and whether the standalone financial statements represent the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.

We communicate with those charged with governance regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control that we identify during our audit.

We also provide those charged with governance with a statement that we have complied with relevant ethical requirements regarding independence, and to communicate with them all relationships and other matters that may reasonably be thought to bear on our independence, and where applicable, related safeguards.

From the matters communicated with those charged with governance, we determine those matters that were of most significance in the audit of the standalone financial statements of the current period and are therefore the key audit matters. We describe these matters in our auditor's report unless law or regulation precludes public disclosure about the matter or when, in extremely rare circumstances, we determine that a matter should not be communicated in our report because the adverse consequences of doing so would reasonably be expected to outweigh the public interest benefits of such communication.

Annexure B to the Auditors' Report

Report on the Internal Financial Controls under Clause (i) of sub-section 3 of Section 143 of the Companies Act, 2013 ('the Act')

We have audited the internal financial controls over financial reporting of R S SOFTWARE (INDIA) LIMITED ('the Company') as on 31st March, 2022 in conjunction with our audit of the standalone financial statements of the Company for the year ended on that date.

Management's Responsibility for Internal Financial Controls

The Company's management is responsible for establishing and maintaining internal financial controls based on the internal control over financial reporting criteria established by the Company considering the essential components of internal control stated in the Guidance Note on Audit of Internal Financial Controls over Financial Reporting issued by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India ('ICAI'). These responsibilities include the design, implementation and maintenance of adequate internal financial controls that were operating effectively for ensuring the orderly and efficient conduct of its business, including adherence to the Company's policies, the safe guarding of its assets, the prevention and detection of frauds and errors, the accuracy and completeness of the accounting records, and the timely preparation of reliable financial information, as required under the Companies Act, 2013.

Auditors' Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the Company's internal financial controls over financial reporting based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with the Guidance Note on Audit of Internal Financial Controls over Financial Reporting (the 'Guidance Note') and the Standards on Auditing, issued by ICAI and deemed to be prescribed under Section 143(10) of the Companies Act, 2013, to the extent applicable to an audit of internal financial controls, both applicable to an audit of Internal Financial Controls and, both issued by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India. Those Standards and the Guidance Note require that we comply with ethical requirements and plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether adequate internal financial controls over financial reporting were established and maintained and if such controls operated effectively in all material respects.

Our audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the adequacy of the internal financial controls system over financial reporting and their operative effectiveness. Our audit of internal Financial Controls over financial reporting included obtaining an understanding of internal financial controls over financial reporting, assessing the risk that a material weakness exists, and testing and evaluating the design and operating effectiveness of internal control based on the assessed risk. The procedures selected depend on the auditors judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion of the Company's internal financial controls system over financial reporting.

Meaning of Internal Financial Controls over Financial Reporting

A company's internal financial control over financial reporting is a process designed to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements for external purpose in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. A company's internal financial control over financial reporting includes those policies and procedures that (1) pertain to the maintenance of records that, in responsible detail, accurately and fairly reflect the transactions and dispositions of the assets of the Company; (2) provide reasonable assurance that transactions are records as necessary to permit preparation of financial statements in accordance with authorizations of the Management and directors of the Company; and (3) provide reasonable assurance regarding prevention or timely detection of unauthorised acquisition, use, or disposition of the Company's assets that could have a material effect on the financial statements.

Inherent Limitations of Internal Financial Controls Over Financial Reporting

Because of the inherent limitations of internal financial controls over financial reporting, including the possibility of collusion or improper management override of controls, material misstatements due to error or fraud may occur and not be detected. Also, projections of any evaluation of the internal financial controls over financial reporting to future period are subject to the risk that the internal financial control over financial reporting may become inadequate because of change in conditions, or that the degree of compliance with the policies or procedures may deteriorate.

Opinion

In our opinion, the Company has, in all material respects, an adequate internal financial controls system over financial reporting and such internal financial controls over financial reporting were operating effectively as at 31st March, 2022, based on the internal control over financial reporting criteria established by the Company considering the essential components of internal controls stated in the Guidance Note on Audit of Internal Financial Controls Over Financial Reporting issued by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India.

a. Significant Accounting Policies

These financial statements are prepared in accordance with Indian Accounting Standard (Ins AS), under the historical cost convention on the actual basis except for the certain financial instruments which are measured at fair values at the end of each reporting period the provisions of the companies Act,2013 ('the Act') (to the extent notified) and guidelines issued by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI). The Ind AS are prescribed under section 133 of the Act read with Rule 3 of the companies (Indian Accounting Standards) Rules,2015 and relevant amendment rules issued there after.

Accounting Policies have been consistently applied except where a newly issued accounting standard is initially adopted or a revision to an existing accounting standard requires a change in the accounting policy hitherto in use. As the quarter and the year figures are taken from the source and rounded to the nearest digits, the figures for the previous quarters might not always add up to the year figures reported in this statement.

b Use of Estimates & Judgements

The preparation of these financial statements in conformity with the recognition and measurement principles of Ind AS requires the management of the Company to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported balances of assets and liabilities, disclosures relating to contingent liabilities as at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of income and expense for the periods presented. Estimates and underlying assumptions are reviewed on an ongoing basis. Revisions to accounting estimates are recognized in the period in which the estimates are revised and future periods are affected. Key source of estimation of uncertainty at the date of the financial statements, which may cause a material adjustment to the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities within the next financial year, is in respect of impairment of goodwill, impairment of investments, useful lives of property, plant and equipment, valuation of deferred tax assets and provisions and contingent liabilities. Key estimates are critical accounting estimates.

c Critical Accounting Estimates:

i) Useful lives of property, plant and equipment

The Company reviews the useful life of property, plant and equipment at the end of each reporting period. This reassessment may result in change in depreciation expense in future periods.

ii) Valuation of deferred tax assets

The Company reviews the carrying amount of deferred tax assets at the end of each reporting period. The policy for the same has been explained under Note 2(M).

iii) Provisions and contingent liabilities

A provision is recognized when the Company has a present obligation as a result of past event and it is probable than an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, in respect of which the reliable estimate can be made. Provisions (excluding retirement benefits and compensated absences) are not discounted to its present value and are determined based on best estimate required to settle the obligation at the balance sheet date. These are reviewed at each balance sheet date adjusted to reflect the current best estimates. Contingent liabilities are not recognized in the financial statements. A contingent asset is neither recognized nor disclosed in the financial statements.

R S SOFTWARE INDIA LIMITED

d Revenue Recognition

Revenue is realized on time-and-material basis or Fixed Bid or Milestone as specified in the work order. Revenue from software development on time and material basis is recognized based on Service rendered (software developed) and billed to clients as per the terms of specific contracts. Revenue from Fixed Bid contract is recognized on monthly basis as per contract terms. Revenue from Milestone base contract is being recognized based on effort given during the period but the Invoice is sent to customer when the milestone is achieved as per contract. Value Added tax in UK is not included in the income from Software development. Contracts are unbundled into separately identifiable components and the consideration is allocated to those identifiable components on the basis of their fair values. Revenue is recognized for respective components either at the point in time or over time, as applicable. Revenue from software development contracts, which are generally time bound fixed price contracts, is recognized over the life of the contract using the percentage-of-completion method, with contract costs determining the degree of completion. Revenue from the sale of internally developed and manufactured systems and third party products which do not require significant modification is recognized upon delivery, which is when the absolute right to use passes to the customer and the Company does not have any material remaining service obligation. Unbilled Revenue included in Other Financial Assets, represents amounts recognized in respect of services performed in accordance with Contract terms, not yet billed to Customers as at Reporting Period end.

The Company derives revenues primarily from business IT services comprising of software development and related services, consulting and package implementation and from the licensing of software products and platforms across our core and digital offerings ("together called as software related services"). Revenue from subsidiaries is recognised based on transaction price which is at arm's length. Interest income has been booked as per effective interest method.

The Company presents revenues net of indirect taxes in its Statement of Profit & loss. All other investment income has been accounted for on accrual basis.

Arrangements with customers for software related services are either on a fixed-price, fixed-timeframe or on a time-and-material basis.

Revenue on time-and-material contracts are recognized as the related services are performed and revenue from the end of the last invoicing to the reporting date is recognized as unbilled revenue. Revenue from fixed-price, fixed-timeframe contracts, where the performance obligations are satisfied over time and where there is no uncertainty as to measurement or collectability of consideration, is recognized as per the percentage-of-completion method. When there is uncertainty as to measurement or ultimate collectability, revenue recognition is postponed until such uncertainty is resolved. Efforts or costs expended have been used to measure progress towards completion as there is a direct relationship between input and productivity. Maintenance revenue is recognized ratably over the term of the underlying maintenance arrangement.

Revenues in excess of invoicing are classified as contract assets (which we refer as unbilled revenue) while invoicing in excess of revenues are classified as contract liabilities (which we refer to as unearned revenues).

In arrangements for software development and related services and maintenance services, the Company has applied the guidance in Ind AS 115, Revenue from contract with customer, by applying the revenue recognition criteria for each distinct performance obligation. The arrangements with customers generally meet the criteria for considering software development and related services as distinct performance obligations. For allocating the transaction price, the Company has measured the revenue in respect of each performance obligation of a contract at its relative standalone selling price. The price that is regularly charged for an item when sold separately is the best evidence of its standalone selling price. In cases where the company is unable to determine the standalone selling price, the company uses the expected cost plus margin approach in estimating the standalone selling price. For software development and related services, the performance obligations are satisfied as and when the services are rendered since the customer generally obtains control of the work as it progresses.

Revenue from licenses where the customer obtains a "right to use" the licenses is recognized at the time the license is made available to the customer. Revenue from licenses where the customer obtains a "right to access"

Level 1: Level 1 hierarchy includes financial instruments basically here includes cash and bank balances which are at carrying value which approximates to its fair value.

Level 2: The fair value of financial instruments that are not traded in an active market (for example, traded bonds, over-the-counter derivatives) is determined using valuation techniques which maximise the use of observable market data and rely as little as possible on entity-specific estimates. If all significant inputs required to fair value an instrument are observable, the instrument is included in level 2.

Level 3: If one or more of the significant inputs is not based on observable market data, the instrument is included in level 3. This is generally the case for unlisted equity securities.

(ii) Valuation technique used to determine fair value

Specific valuation techniques used to value financial instruments include:

- the use of Net assets value/ realisable value in case of investment in mutual fund
- Other financial instruments have been carried at their carrying value which approximates to its fair value

We have audited the financial statement of Responsive Solutions, Inc., (a California Corporation) which comprise the balance sheet as of March 31, 2022, and the related statement of operations, change in stockholders' equity, and cash flows for the three and twelve months ended March 31, 2022, and the related notes to the financial statements.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statement present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Responsive Solutions, Inc., as of March 31, 2022, and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the three months and twelve months ended in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Basis for Opinion

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements section of our report. We are required to be independent of Responsive Solutions, Inc., and to meet our other ethical responsibilities, in accordance with the relevant ethical requirements relating to our audit. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Responsibilities of Management for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, and for the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error. In preparing the financial statements, management is required to evaluate whether there are conditions or events, considered in the aggregate, that raise substantial doubt about Responsive Solutions, Inc's ability to continue as a going concern within one year from the date the financial statements are available to be issued.

Auditors' Responsibilities for the Audit of the Financial Statements

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor's report that includes our opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance but is not absolute assurance and therefore is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control. Misstatements are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users made on the basis of these financial statements.

In performing an audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, we:

- Exercise professional judgment and maintain professional skepticism throughout the audit.
- Identify and assess the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error, and design and perform audit procedures responsive to those risks. Such procedures include examining, on a test basis, evidence regarding the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements.
- Obtain an understanding of internal control relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of Responsive Solutions, Inc's internal control. Accordingly, no such opinion is expressed.

- Evaluate the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluate the overall presentation of the financial statements.
- Conclude whether, in our judgment, there are conditions or events, considered in the aggregate, that raise substantial doubt about Responsive Solutions, Inc's ability to continue as a going concern for a reasonable period of time.

We are required to communicate with those charged with governance regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit, significant audit findings, and certain internal control-related matters that we identified during the audit.

1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Nature of Business -- Responsive Solutions, Inc. ("Responsive Solutions"), a California corporation incorporated in 1994, Responsive Solutions markets a multi-user Corrective Action Tracking System (CATSWeb) designed to track manufacturing nonconformities and corrective action, achieve and maintain ISO/QS 9000 certification, and empower companies in a broad range of industries to solve problems faster.

Responsive Solutions, Inc. is a wholly owned subsidiary of RS Software (India) Ltd, "Parent".

Basis of Accounting -- Responsive Solutions prepares the financial statements using accrual basis of accounting in conformity with the generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America. The expenses are recorded when the benefits and services are received.

Estimates Included in the Financial Statements -- The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of expenses during the reporting period. Responsive Solutions is subject to risks and uncertainties that may cause actual results to differ from estimated amounts, such as changes in the technology, competition, litigation, legislation and regulations. Responsive Solutions regularly evaluates their estimates and assumptions using historical experience and expectations about the future. Responsive Solutions adjusts their estimates and assumptions when facts and circumstances indicate the need for change.

Cash and Cash Equivalents -- Cash consists of interest and non-interest-bearing accounts with one financial institution. Responsive Solutions considers all highly liquid investments with original maturity of three months or less from the date of purchased, to be cash equivalents. The carrying value of cash equivalents approximates fair value.

Note Receivable, Related affiliate -- Responsive Solutions issued short term unsecured receivable amounting to $876,584 to the Parent, RS Software (India) Ltd which bears no interest rate. Related party receivable balance was $876,584 as of March 31, 2022. Management estimates the note is going to be received full in year 2022.

Accounts Payable -- Accounts payable are recorded when goods or benefits are received.

Revenue Recognition -- On January 1, 2019, Responsive Solutions adopted new accounting standard, as amended, regarding revenue from contracts with customers using the modified retrospective approach. This standard provides guidance on recognizing revenue, including a five-step model to determine when revenue recognition is appropriate. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the Responsive Solutions' financial position and results of operations. Responsive Solutions derives revenue primarily from software services and development on fixed-price contracts. On the time-and-materials contracts, revenue is recognized as related services are rendered.

Transactions with Related Parties -- Transactions that occurred between Responsive Solutions and related parties during the three and twelve month ended March 31, 2022 are as follows:

Responsive Solutions issued short term unsecured receivable amounting to $876,584 to the Parent, RS Software (India) Ltd which bears no interest rate. Related party receivable balance was $876,584 as of March 31, 2022. Management estimates the note is going to be received full in year 2022.

Risks and Uncertainties -- Products are concentrated in an industry which is characterized by significant competition, rapid technological advances, changes in customer requirements and evolving regulatory requirements and industry standards. The success of Responsive Solutions depends on management's ability to anticipate and to respond quickly and adequately to technological developments in the industry, changes in customer requirements or changes to industry standards. Any significant delays in the development or introduction of products could have a material adverse effect on Responsive Solutions business and operating results.

Fair Value of Financial Instruments -- The carrying amounts of financial instruments including cash, note receivable from related affiliate, and accounts payable approximate fair value as of March 31, 2022, because of the relatively short maturity of these instruments.

Income Taxes Payables -- Responsive Solutions has elected to be taxed under the chapter C of the Internal Revenue Code. Income of Responsive Solutions is reported in Responsive Solutions income tax return. Responsive Solutions files its income tax returns in the U.S. Federal, and California jurisdictions. None of Responsive Solutions tax returns have been examined by the taxing authorities, nor has Responsive Solutions been notified of any pending examinations.

At March 31, 2022, Responsive Solutions did not have any tax benefit disallowed under the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") Accounting Standards Codification ("ASC") FASB ASC 740, Income Taxes and no amounts have been recognized for potential interests and penalties. A tax position is recognized as a benefit only if it is "more likely than not" that the tax position would be sustained in a tax examination, with the tax examination being presumed to occur. The amount recognized is the largest amount of tax benefit that is greater than 50% likely of being realized on examination. For tax position not meeting the "more likely than not" test, no tax benefit is recorded. Current tax expense for the three and twelve month ended March 31, 2022 presented are comprised of the minimum tax for Federal and the state of California based on minimal tax rates for taxable income. Deferred income taxes reflect the net tax effects of temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities for financial reporting purposes and the amounts used for income tax purposes. Responsive Solutions has temporary differences which are immaterial. Thus, Responsive Solutions determines it impractical to recognize such in the financial statements.

Uncertain Tax Positions -- Responsive Solutions accounts for uncertain tax positions in accordance with GAAP. GAAP prescribes a recognition threshold and measurement process for financial statement recognition of uncertain tax positions taken or expected to be taken on a tax return. GAAP also provides guidance on recognition, de-recognition, classification, interest and penalties, accounting in interim periods, disclosure, and transition. There was no impact on total liabilities or stockholder's equity as a result of the adoption of these provisions.

Concentration of Credit Risk -- Financial instruments that potentially subject Responsive Solutions to concentrations of credit risk consist principally of deposits greater than $250,000 for interest bearing accounts with each financial institution that is a member of Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC"), and security deposits greater than $500,000 ($250,000 in cash) with each financial institution that is a member of Securities Investor Protection Corporation ("SIPC"). Responsive Solutions has no cash balances on deposit at March 31, 2022 that exceeded the balance insured by the FDIC. Management of Responsive Solutions periodically reviews its cash policies and believes any potential accounting loss is minimal.

Subsequent Event -- As a result of the spread of the COVID-19 coronavirus, economic uncertainties have arisen which may impact operating activities, though such potential impact is unknown at this time. Management has evaluated subsequent events through April 7, 2022, the date which the financial statements were available to be issued. The financial statements include all events or transactions, including estimates, required to be recognized in accordance with the accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Responsive Solutions has determined that there are no unrecognized subsequent events that require additional disclosures.

Level 1: Level 1 hierarchy includes financial instruments basically here includes cash and bank balances which are at carrying value which approximates to its fair value.

Level 2: The fair value of financial instruments that are not traded in an active market (for example, traded bonds, over-the-counter derivatives) is determined using valuation techniques which maximise the use of observable market data and rely as little as possible on entity-specific estimates. If all significant inputs required to fair value an instrument are observable, the instrument is included in level 2.

Level 3: If one or more of the significant inputs is not based on observable market data, the instrument is included in level 3. This is generally the case for unlisted equity securities.

(ii) Valuation technique used to determine fair value

Specific valuation techniques used to value financial instruments include:

- the use of Net assets value/ realisable value in case of investment in mutual fund.
- Other financial instruments have been carried at their carrying value which approximates to its fair value.

(iii) Fair value of financial assets and liabilities measured at amortised cost

The carrying amounts of trade receivables, loans, cash and cash equivalents, other bank balances, other financial assets, security deposits, trade payables and other financial liabilities are considered to be the same as their fair values, due to their short-term nature.

For financial assets and liabilities that are measured at fair value, the carrying amounts are equal to the fair values.

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the Consolidated Financial Statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor's report that includes our opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with SAs will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. The risk of not detecting a material misstatement resulting from fraud is higher than for one resulting from error, as fraud may involve collusion, forgery, intentional omissions, misrepresentations, or the override of internal control.
- Obtain an understanding of internal controls relevant to the audit in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances. to draw attention in our auditor's report to the related disclosures in the interim consolidated financial statements or, if such disclosures are inadequate, to modify our opinion. Our conclusions are based on the audit evidence obtained up to the date of our auditor's report. However, future events or conditions may cause the Group to cease to continue as a going concern.

- Evaluate the overall presentation, structure and content of the interim consolidated financial statements, including the disclosures, and whether the interim consolidated financial statements represent the underlying transactions and events in a manner that achieves fair presentation.
- Obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence regarding the financial information of the entities or business activities within the Group to express an opinion on the consolidated financial statements. We are responsible for the direction, supervision and performance of the audit of the financial statements of such entities included in the consolidated financial statements of which we are the independent auditors. A company's internal financial control over financial reporting is a process designed to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements for external purpose in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. A company's internal financial control over financial reporting includes those policies and procedures that (1) pertain to the maintenance of records that, in responsible detail, accurately and fairly reflect the transactions and dispositions of the assets of the Company; (2) provide reasonable assurance that transactions are records as necessary to permit preparation of financial statements in accordance with authorizations of the Management and directors of the Company; and (3) provide reasonable assurance regarding prevention or timely detection of unauthorized acquisition, use, or disposition of the Company's assets that could have a material effect on the financial statements.

Inherent Limitations of Internal Financial Controls Over Financial Reporting

Because of the inherent limitations of internal financial controls over financial reporting, including the possibility of collusion or improper management override of controls, material misstatements due to error or fraud may occur and not be detected. Also, projections of any evaluation of the internal financial controls over financial reporting to future period are subject to the risk that the internal financial control over financial reporting may become inadequate because of change in conditions, or that the degree of compliance with the policies or procedures may deteriorate.

Opinion

In our opinion, the Company has, in all material respects, an adequate internal financial controls system over financial reporting and such internal financial controls over financial reporting were operating effectively as at 31st March, 2022, based on the internal control over financial reporting criteria established by the Company considering the essential components of internal controls stated in the Guidance Note on Audit of Internal Financial Controls Over Financial Reporting issued by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India.

1 Corporate Information

RS Software has focused exclusively on providing software solution to electronic payment industries since its inception. The company is engaged in development, testing and maintenance of software for its clients based in different geographies. The company operates in US, UK and India. The Financial Statement are approved for issue by the company's Board of Directors on APR 22,2022.

2 a.

Significant Accounting Policies

These financial statements are prepared in accordance with Indian Accounting Standard (Ind AS), under the historical cost convention on the actual basis except for the certain financial instruments which are measured at fair values at the end of each reporting period the provisions of the companies Act,2013 ("the Act") (to the extent notified) and guidelines issued by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI). The Ind AS are prescribed under section 133 of the Act read with Rule 3 of the companies (Indian Accounting Standards) Rules,2015 and relevant amendment rules issued there after.

Accounting Policies have been consistently applied except where a newly issued accounting standard is initially adopted or a revision to an existing accounting standard requires a change in the accounting policy hitherto in use. As the quarter and the year figures are taken from the source and rounded to the nearest digits, the figures for the previous quarters might not always add up to the year figures reported in this statement.

The Consolidated financial statements comprise the financial statements of the Company, its controlled trusts and its subsidiaries, as disclosed in Notes to Accounts. Control exists when the parent has power over the entity, is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the entity and has the ability to affect those returns by using its power over the entity. The financial statements of the subsidiaries are consolidated on a line-by-line basis and intra-group balances and transactions including unrealized gain / loss from such transactions are eliminated upon consolidation. These financial statements are prepared by applying uniform accounting policies in use at the Group.

b. Use of Estimates & Judgements

The preparation of these financial statements in conformity with the recognition and measurement principles of Ind AS requires the management of the Company to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported balances of assets and liabilities, disclosures relating to contingent liabilities as at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of income and expense for the periods presented. Estimates and underlying assumptions are reviewed on an ongoing basis. Revisions to accounting estimates are recognized in the period in which the estimates are revised and future periods are affected. Key source of estimation of uncertainty at the date of the financial statements, which may cause a material adjustment to the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities within the next financial year, is in respect of impairment of goodwill, impairment of investments, useful lives of property, plant and equipment, valuation of deferred tax assets and provisions and contingent liabilities. Key estimates are critical accounting estimates.

c. Critical Accounting Estimates:

i) Useful lives of property, plant and equipment

The Company reviews the useful life of property, plant and equipment at the end of each reporting period. This reassessment may result in change in depreciation expense in future periods.

ii) Valuation of deferred tax assets

The Company reviews the carrying amount of deferred tax assets at the end of each reporting period. The policy for the same has been explained under Note 2(M).

iii) Provisions and contingent liabilities

A provision is recognized when the Company has a present obligation as a result of past event and it is probable than an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, in respect of which the reliable estimate can be made. Provisions (excluding retirement benefits and compensated absences) are not discounted to its present value and are determined based on best estimate required to settle the obligation at the balance sheet date. These are reviewed at each balance sheet date adjusted to reflect the current best estimates. Contingent liabilities are not recognized in the financial statements. A contingent asset is neither recognized nor disclosed in the financial statements.

d. Revenue Recognition

Revenue is realized on time-and-material basis or Fixed Bid or Milestone as specified in the work order. Revenue from software development on time and material basis is recognized based on Service rendered (software developed) and billed to clients as per the terms of specific contracts. Revenue from Fixed Bid contract is recognized on monthly basis as per contract terms. Revenue from Milestone base contract is being recognized based on effort given during the period but the Invoice is sent to customer when the milestone is achieved as per contract. Value Added Tax in UK is not included in the income from Software development. Contracts are unbundled into separately identifiable components and the consideration is allocated to those identifiable components on the basis of their fair values. Revenue is recognized for respective components either at the point in time or over time, as applicable. Revenue from software development contracts, which are generally time bound fixed price contracts, is recognized over the life of the contract using the percentage-of-completion method, with contract costs determining the degree of completion. Revenue from the sale of internally developed and manufactured systems and third party products which do not require significant modification is recognized upon delivery, which is when the absolute right to use passes to the customer and the Company does not have any material remaining service obligation. Unbilled Revenue included in Other Financial Assets, represents amounts recognized in respect of services performed in accordance with Contract terms, not yet billed to Customers as at Reporting Period end.

The Company derives revenues primarily from business IT services comprising of software development and related services, consulting and package implementation and from the licensing of software products and platforms across our core and digital offerings ("together called as software related services"). Revenue from subsidiaries is recognised based on transaction price which is at arm's length. Interest income has been booked as per effective interest method.

The Company presents revenues net of indirect taxes in its Statement of Profit & loss. All other investment income has been accounted for on accrual basis.

Arrangements with customers for software related services are either on a fixed-price, fixed-timeframe or on a time-and-material basis.

Revenue on time-and-material contracts are recognized as the related services are performed and revenue from the end of the last invoicing to the reporting date is recognized as unbilled revenue. Revenue from fixed-price, fixed-timeframe contracts, where the performance obligations are satisfied over time and where there is no uncertainty as to measurement or collectability of consideration, is recognized as per the percentage-of-completion method. When there is uncertainty as to measurement or ultimate collectability, revenue recognition is postponed until such uncertainty is resolved. Efforts or costs expended have been used to measure progress towards completion as there is a direct relationship between input and productivity. Maintenance revenue is recognized ratably over the term of the underlying maintenance arrangement.

Revenues in excess of invoicing are classified as contract assets (which we refer as unbilled revenue) while invoicing in excess of revenues are classified as contract liabilities (which we refer to as unearned revenues).

In arrangements for software development and related services and maintenance services, the Company has applied the guidance in Ind AS 115, Revenue from contract with customer, by applying the revenue recognition criteria for each distinct performance obligation. The arrangements with customers generally meet the criteria for considering software development and related services as distinct performance obligations. For allocating the transaction price, the Company has measured the revenue in respect of each performance obligation of a contract at its relative standalone selling price. The price that is regularly charged for an item when sold separately is the best evidence of its standalone selling price. In cases where the company is unable to determine the standalone selling price, the company uses the expected cost plus margin approach in estimating the standalone selling price. For software development and related services, the performance obligations are satisfied as and when the services are rendered since the customer generally obtains control of the work as it progresses.

Revenue from licenses where the customer obtains a "right to use" the licenses is recognized at the time the license is made available to the customer. Revenue from licenses where the customer obtains a "right to access" is recognized over the access period. Arrangements to deliver software products generally have three elements license, implementation and Annual Technical Services (ATS).

e. Cost recognition

Costs and expenses are recognized when incurred and have been classified according to their primary nature.

t. Recent Indian Accounting Standard (Ind AS)

Ind AS 116 Leases : On March 30, 2019, Ministry of Corporate Affairs has notified Ind AS 116 replacing Standard, Ind AS 17 Leases, and related Interpretations. The Standard sets out the principles for the recognition, measurement, presentation and disclosure of leases for both parties to a contract i.e., the lessee and the lessor Ind AS 116 introduces a single lessee accounting model and requires a lessee to recognize assets and liabilities for all leases with a term of more than twelve months, unless the underlying asset is of low value. Currently, operating lease expenses are charged to the statement of Profit & Loss. The Standard also contains enhanced disclosure requirements for lessees. Ind AS 116 substantially carries forward the lessor accounting requirements in Ind AS 17. The effective date for adoption of Ind AS 116 is annual periods beginning on or after April 1, 2019. The effect on adoption of Ind AS 116 Appendix C would be insignificant in the standalone financial statements

IndAS 20 of Government grants shall apply to any benefits received by the company from any government agencies. The Company recognizes government grants only when there is reasonable assurance that the conditions attached to them shall be complied with, and the grants will be received. Government grants related to assets are treated as deferred income and are recognized in net profit in the Profit and Loss on a systematic and rational basis. Government grants related to revenue are recognized on a systematic basis in Statement of Profit and Loss over the periods necessary to match them with the related costs which they are intended to compensate.

Amendment to Ind AS 19 – plan amendment, curtailment or settlement- On March 30, 2019, Ministry of Corporate Affairs issued amendments to Ind AS 19, 'Employee Benefits', in connection with accounting for plan amendments, curtailments and settlements.

The amendments require an entity:

- to use updated assumptions to determine current service cost and net interest for the remainder of the period after a plan amendment, curtailment or settlement; and
- to recognise in profit or loss as part of past service cost, or a gain or loss on settlement, any reduction in a surplus, even if that surplus was not previously recognised because of the impact of the asset ceiling.

Effective date for application of this amendment is annual period beginning on or after April 1, 2019. The Company does not have any impact on account of this amendment
